104 The end

I love you so much

My child, I want you to know that when you suffer, I am not in heaven judging you. I am beside you suffering with you. Didn't I send my only son, Jesus, to Earth precisely to draw you closer to me, even though I knew that He would have suffered and even experienced an ignoble, humiliating death on the cross? Didn't Jesus tell you in His own words that: "Blessed are the afflicted, for they shall be comforted"?

My child, when the cells of your body, designed by me to be healthy and in perfect harmony, begin to behave anomalously and cause what you call disease inside you, I am at your bedside. Didn't I send Jesus to heal all those whose bodies had lost the creative equilibrium that you call health? Don't forget the words "Blessed are the merciful, for they shall be shown mercy", because I will save you and re-establish your mind, body and spirit.

My child, when you feel poor, alone and abandoned, my arms will hold you even tighter than usual, my voice (even when, precisely in those grim moments, you can't hear it) will whisper in your ear how much I love you and my gaze will not shift from you for even a single moment. Didn't Jesus tell you so with the following words: "Blessed are the poor in spirit, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven"?

My child, when you are persecuted unjustly I want you to know that evil is really persecuting me, before whom its inadequacy and falseness are unveiled. Wasn't my son Jesus also persecuted and killed precisely because of the good, the light and the hope that He brought? Didn't He explain this to you with these words: "Blessed are those that are persecuted for righteousness' sake, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven. Blessed are you, when they insult you and persecute you and, lying, say all sorts of bad things about you because of me"?

My child, when you feel anguish and desperation in the depths of your soul, don't forget that Jesus too felt the same anguish when he died on the cross for you. Didn't He lovingly teach you, "Blessed are the meek, for they shall inherit the Earth"? And if this is the destiny that the Creator and Father has in mind for you, why should you be anguished?

My child, when you have the impression that, despite all your best efforts, evil seems to reign unchallenged within you, in your family and in your society, don't worry about evil, do not fight it, because it is my battle that I am fighting for you. Indeed, blessed are those who hunger and thirst for righteousness, for they shall be filled by me. And blessed, too, are those who strive for peace, because they will be called my children.

My child, when the breath of life leaves one of your loved ones, causing their being to turn to dust, I am close to your heart and grieve with you and just like you. I, too, have lost a loved one... Actually, I loved Him even more than you. Didn't I send my only son, Jesus, to resurrect the dead like Lazarus, and then not even resurrect my own son? Remember to follow the polestar that I put before you when it tells you: "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God". Yes, you will see me face-to-face one day (very soon).

My child, jump for joy, because your reward is great in heaven.

Your dad

Unbalanced equilibrium

In economics, a balanced budget is the condition of the accounts of a business entity in which, over the course of a year, the financial outgoings sustained equal the revenue gained, thus avoiding situations of deficit and consequently falling into debt.

Every child that grows in the Matrix is educated according to this mindset. Any evil done should somehow be counterbalanced with good works. The Matrixian genetics of balancing the budget thus continues to grow. The Matrix is indeed the world of the perfect balance between good and evil, income and expenditure, good works and sins, bright exterior and rotten interior.

But doesn't my polestar explain to me that the initial equilibrium at the moment of the creation consisted of the presence only of Good and the total absence of evil?

Did the perfect world created by the Creator God have a balanced budget (equilibrium) between two opposites or was it the place where only one pole abounded, the pole of Good, of unconditional love and of immortality?

Up to my neck in debt

In the field of government accounting, balancing the budget means that the total public expenditure incurred by the government and other public agencies must equal the state revenue: the government thus avoids incurring a debt, i.e. a deficit in the public balance. The sum total of the public deficit accumulated each year leads to the formation of the public DEBT.

Every newborn that is born in the Matrix is born already in debt... heavily and inexplicably in debt! I, poor creature, don't even have time to take my first breath before a substantial DEBT already weighs heavily on my small, frail, innocent shoulders. Yes, I am up to my neck in debt, without ever having personally incurred any DEBT! That's just the way it is!

This story is particularly sad, as well as being particularly true. Even in the religious sphere I am born already a debtor/sinner, due to a mysterious, not clearly defined original spiritual DEBT, an "original sin" I did not commit. The god that the Matrix presents to me blames me by definition, regardless of everything. I thus grow up with a long list of precepts/rules/rites/prayers/commandments that are continually waved before my eyes, with the sole objective of making me constantly feel the pressure of DEBT on my conscience.

Whatever I do, or don't do, I am constantly at fault. I am bent and even broken in my most intimate being by the concept of DEBT with which I will soon have to learn to live and survive. This is the stench of the Matrixian prison, as invisible as it is ruthless. Every molecule in the Matrix seems to remind me of my economic and spiritual DEBT at every moment of my life. In the view of the architects of the Matrix, I am a citizen that must repay, through slavery, his DEBT. So the Matrix presents this slavery to me as dutiful, indispensable and even salvific.

The tomb of my dignity

DEBT bows people's backs, and a curved, bowed population does not have the strength to rebel against even the most evident abuse and the most obvious injustice. This is the stench, for the umpteenth time, of the Matrixian mental prison, a cage for my soul and the tomb of all my aspirations to dignity and liberty. DEBT, therefore, together with the continual request for the budget to be balanced, pursued through the politics of "austerity" (reduction in social expenditure and simultaneous increase in tax burden), are the instruments used by the prince of the Matrix to render me an inoffensive, passive, profoundly fearful slave that is dead inside... a zombie. The perfect victim from whom to suck, undisturbed, day after day, the blood. Cruel, isn't it? The sense of DEBT is so deeply entrenched within me that I have even come to call a vindictive, punitive god the "good shepherd". By now, my brain is so humiliated/ violated that I can easily unify opposites in an absurd, incestuous, fatal embrace. Real spiritual schizophrenia. I feel so indebted that I passively believe in the religion of DEBT, I entrust myself to the cure of balancing the budget and I inflict on myself a plan of austerity that flays me alive.

Yet, the most marginalized, damned and shattered people in the society of His time found hope and vitality in Jesus... in other words, the most materially, physically, psychologically and, above all, spiritually indebted. What a contrast! Jesus who frees the conscience of His followers compared with His followers today who allow their consciences, and those of their peers, to rot under a (material, psychological and spiritual) burden as dishonorable as it is oppressive.

The concept of always having to balance things is a mental virus that renders me, invisibly but powerfully, a slave!

The chosen one

The enlightened architects of the Matrix, in a world in which “balancing the budget”, DEBT and austerity reign unchallenged, hypnotize me with the lie that I only deserve to be a slave.

- ➔ Jesus tells me: “The Spirit of the Creator GOD is upon me, because He has anointed me to bring good news to the humble; He has sent me to bind up the brokenhearted, to proclaim freedom for the slaves in the Matrix, the opening of the prisons for the captives, to comfort all those who are afflicted and give them CREDIT instead of DEBT, forgiveness instead of revenge, a strong spirit instead of a broken one, to proclaim the Jubilee: the year of the LORD’s favor” (see Isaiah 61:1-2, first part). Could the Messiah, the chosen one, the anointed, the Christ awaited for two thousand years (and much longer) by my parents and grandparents be about to return? Could the liberation from my prison be drawing near? Could the moment of total and definitive remission of my material and spiritual DEBT have arrived?

Unlimited credit

Balancing the budget doesn't convince me. Austerity seems to me a mockery and with DEBT I smell a rat. In other words, it doesn't add up! Today, more than ever, I, a created being, need the divine, eternal jubilee. The Jubilee, which gets its name from the Jewish one, is the year of remission of sins and reconciliation with my God and my neighbor. The Jubilee is commonly called the "Holy Year" because it is designed to facilitate a "life of holiness", a life similar to that of Jesus... a Christian-style life. Indeed, the Jubilee year is the year of Jesus. In the New Testament of my polestar, Jesus presents Himself as the one who brings the old Jubilee to fulfillment because He came to "preach the year of the Lord's favor".

The Matrix is a world with foundations based on DEBT. The kingdom of God that God the Son, Jesus, is about to bring me, on the other hand, is built on an unlimited CREDIT that the Creator offers me as His beloved creature. Isn't immortality itself a CREDIT of inestimable value?

The divine puzzle

Big things are happening, both positive and negative. Planet Earth is preparing for something extraordinary... something unique, more than a mere rare occurrence. These are difficult times, but also memorable times... the atmosphere is increasingly electric... it is full of expectation and hope despite the fact that the signs of the times are pitch black. Earthquake after earthquake... wars and rumors of wars... unemployment, hunger and desperation... the anxiety on people's faces is increasingly evident. At the same time many sincere fans of Jesus are waking up... they are rediscovering their loving, powerful Father who speaks to them through dreams, visions, miracles and healing.

The time is now ripe... everything is coming together like a big puzzle... the divine puzzle!

Let us fans of Jesus unite... let us love one another and hold fast to our dad who is in heaven... because the prince of the Matrix is launching his last attack... and there will soon be a period of anguish as has never been seen before on this planet, but Jesus and His fans will emerge the victors (see Daniel 12:1).

The divine puzzle is now clear and well defined: Jesus is about to return.

Jesus is coming soon

In just the same way that at the time of Jesus' first coming, only a handful of poor, humble men were spiritually receptive to the announcement given by the angels, so today, at the dawn of His second and final coming (this time with glory and power), very few fans of Jesus are rekindling their lamps to be ready to meet Jesus the groom and light up the thick spiritual and moral darkness of my world today.

- Why is no one talking about this?
- Why don't the news reports make even the slightest mention of it?
- Why is it hardly ever preached about in the churches?
- Why does my character reflect the style of my enslaver much more than the style of my Creator and Savior?

– Why do I allow myself to be influenced by Matrixian DEBT much more than by divine CREDIT?

Look, Jesus is going to come in the clouds very soon and every eye will see Him; the fans of the Matrix will see Him too, and all the Matrixian zombies of planet Earth (the dead who believe themselves to be alive; the poor who believe themselves rich; those who, while sleeping, believe themselves to be awake) will curse because of the fall of the Matrix, their world... a world designed and created in the image and likeness of he who was formerly known as Lucifer (alias the prince of the Matrix). Yes, that is exactly how it will be (see Revelation 1:7).

Jesus will come to planet Earth in His glory with all the angels and will take up His place on His glorious throne. We will all be reunited before Jesus and He will separate one group from the other the way a shepherd separates the sheep from the goats; and He will place those who are like Him on His right and the rest He will put on His left (see Matthew 25:31-33).

On which side will He put me?

God's face

Mystery

It is truly a mystery to me how from reading the Bible – the polestar of all the fans of Jesus, the so-called “good news”, the Word of the God of love who is also the God of life – infinite aberrations such as the holy wars and the violence they brought, the torture, beatings, burning at the stake, the witch hunts, the sackings, the mass rapes, baptism imposed on peoples with the iron of the cross of the sword and with fire, the extermination of heretics and the religious wars, purgatory where souls are tormented, the crusades and the conquistadors, the sale of indulgences, etc., could arise throughout the centuries. I have seen all sorts of things done in the name of the God of this Bible. I thus witness the triumph of evil over good, of lies over truth, of idolatry over God, of violence over meekness, refusal over acceptance, cruelty over mercy, hypocrisy over sincerity. What a mystery!!!

How is it possible that the same Bible, the Word of God, could allow itself to be interpreted so that it justifies and advocates the worst atrocities and most abominable crimes committed against humanity? Doesn't this sacred book refer to this same humanity as God's children?

Existential doubts

What is my Creator really like? How can I get to know Him? Where can I behold His true, uncontaminated face/character? Is he a god who only reveals himself to the proud "spiritually rich" and the powerful religious professionals or is He the one who lovingly tries to establish a relationship of trust first and foremost with all His creatures who have been disinherited (spiritually, economically and politically)? Is he a god who is love for all his friends and vindictive violence for his enemies, or is He a complete bystander to all the crimes committed in his name?

These questions have always resounded through my soul and not infrequently when I have delved into some Bible stories and characters it has just ended up further intensifying my worry, making the discovery of the ultimate meaning of my existence even more remote. How can I forget about the great and mighty prophet Elijah who, after having caused the divine fire to come down from heaven, condemned 850 creatures of God to die? Were they the priests of a false god? So what if they were? Doesn't the sixth commandment (see Exodus 20:13) tell me not to kill? According to what theological schizophrenia can I reconcile the death penalty with the perfect, holy character of the God of love and life?

So why then do I still believe that my father in heaven demands death and suffering, penitence and self-flagellation, offerings and pilgrimages to expiate evil, when Jesus tells me about a dad who forgives for free, out of love? Is the millennial work of the prince of the Matrix, that of causing the creature to perceive his own wonderful heavenly father as horrid, perhaps still unknown even to me despite the fact that I define myself as a fan of Jesus? In the well-known parable of the prodigal son, is the son who left the father accepted once again after paying tribute? Was the father waiting for him frowning and with the hardened face of one who cannot bring himself to forgive, or does Jesus tell me a completely different story? And what does Jesus want me to understand through this parable? Could this parable hold the key to the comprehension of the Word of this unknown God/Father, the Bible? Is it really the fulfilment of the Gospel, my Good News, that God needs violence to save?

A creature without a Creator

I feel in the depths of my being that I need a Father; I feel I am an orphan and I seek my father. But it almost seems to me that the Christian God of the Bible hides from His children, the human race, behind the pages of His own word. Is He really hiding or is it my distance from Him that makes it almost impossible for me to make out His face in the affairs of my life and of the entire human race? In the Matrix, God the Creator is portrayed at times as a distant, majestic, cold, exacting figure; a terrible tyrant who oppresses His subjects with the burden of DEBT for every error, or a terrible, bloodthirsty god who must be appeased, calmed down, satisfied with Masses, offerings and many other religious duties. At other times, this god is shown to me as a cynical manipulator who directs His creation with predestined outcomes and before whom I, the creature, act as a puppet. I ask myself whether after all, this god, who no one has seen, really exists...

How out of focus is the image I have of God? How imperfect is the face that even the great Bible prophets of God portray to me? How much must I bitterly confess that even the church founded by God the Son (Jesus) is not clear on it, despite the fact that its Master and Shepherd showed it unequivocally through His life on Earth? How much, and how often, has His holy image been violated by so-called religious/political leaders who have confused their own basest and most filthy Matrixian aspirations with the divine will? How much more deformed is the image of the Creator that is daily injected to me in the Matrix that describes and teaches in its own image and likeness?

Biblical cryptography

Cryptography (from the union of two Greek words, kryptós which means “hidden” and graphía which means “writing”) is the branch of cryptology which deals with “hidden writings”, i.e. methods to render a message “unclear” so that it is not comprehensible/intelligible to people who are not authorized to read it. Such a message is commonly called a cryptogram and the techniques used are ciphering techniques.

Perhaps the Bible was also given in cipher and therefore needs to be deciphered to be understood and interpreted according to the will of its original Author, the Creator God, He who is love and life. Perhaps the correctness of the comprehension depends precisely on the spirit with which I read those precious pages – the rebellious spirit of the creature or the enlightened, wise Spirit of God. If a literal reading of the Word of God were sufficient, I certainly wouldn't need the help of its Author, and there wouldn't be so many obvious misinterpretations either.

The Bible was written by men. They were certainly inspired, but still men, limited in comprehension and even in language. Because the prince of the Matrix has, since Adam and Eve, manipulated the image that I, creature, have of my heavenly Father, every inspiration received and transmitted orally (and later, also in writing) must have been influenced by this distorted conception of God. This fact became particularly evident when God the Son, Jesus, came to this Earth and found that precisely the greatest experts and scholars of the Bible (limited, until that time, to the Old Testament) firmly believed that misfortune and illness were sent from the heavenly father Himself as punishment for the sins of the person themselves (retributive justice), or even of the parents and ancestors of the poor victim. But Jesus, who knew the Father perfectly, and who came to this Earth of mine with precisely the mission of revealing this heavenly Father to me, firmly fought against this aberrant distortion of the face of the good Father in heaven.

Rebellion

About 4,000 years before Christ, the human race, hypnotized by the subtle, but nonetheless false and mendacious, promises of self-exaltation and enlightenment made by the serpent (alias the prince of the Matrix), decided to invert its path and distance itself from its Creator and His pre-established creative equilibrium. The entire relationship between the Creator and the creature changed instantly. The harmony and peace in Eden, the paradise in which my foreparents Adam and Eve found themselves when they were created, shattered.

At that moment, the history of the universe underwent a radical paradigm shift. The rebellion of the creature, until then limited to the former Lucifer and his demon companions, had now gained a stronghold in the new world... my planet called Earth. The stakes had become very high.

Adam and Eve realized their fatal error. An ice-cold shiver passed through them and they understood that something vital had died. Their beautiful clothing of light and glory that reflected their natural harmony and closeness to their beloved Creator disappeared (see Genesis 3:7). They were naked and ashamed and the usual joy of their daily encounter with their (and my) heavenly Father abandoned them.

But the loss of the creature did not take the omniscient Creator by surprise. So God called the man and said

➔ to him, "Where are you?" (see Genesis 3:9). Isn't it strange that the first thing that God communicates to His "prodigal children" is the feeling of emotional loss? He is not remotely interested in making Adam and Eve feel bad about the error/sin. No, He doesn't suffocate them with the feeling of DEBT as He could have and I probably would have in His place. Rather, He immediately sets about looking for His beloved "lost sheep", a search that, in a way, He has been continuing for several millennia with each person He created. Yes, the first question of my Creator is not a rebuke for a wrong deed (transgression of a commandment), but the loving question of a father who has lost sight of His children who up till that moment had always been very close to Him, and therefore in sight. Doesn't it seem to transmit to me a concept of "sin" more as an emotional problem of distance from one's Father, than a concept of "sin" as a mere wrong deed? And if the famous "sin" is simply "distance from God", then "salvation" must be, simply, "reconciliation with God”, the source of all life, Indeed, I can only experience immortality if I am attached to the source of all life. The indebted man/sinner experiences firsthand a God who lovingly goes towards His children and seeks them. Already, with this simple discovery, I can make out the beginning of something that will only be finished at the end of the history of my planet Earth: God the Father who seeks His children, the lost human race, proactively taking the initiative to save me Himself.

God in 3D

A hologram is a three-dimensional image of an object. It is often used (e.g. on passports) as an anti-fraud system.

Jesus is the only one who has really seen the Father, and He is therefore the only perfectly reliable source!

To know Jesus, the incarnation of God, therefore corresponds to knowing the Father. Jesus is the most precise and accurate portrait, the three-dimensional anti-fraud hologram of the divine person of the Father.

With this new portrait, God the Father wants to transform/correct His image in my mind, forever distancing the speculations that for thousands of years have obscured my knowledge of Him. With Jesus' coming, for the first time since the Creation, man has been able to know God three-dimensionally as He really is, revealing the falsification and counterfeits that have always existed in the Matrix. God showed Himself three-dimensionally through His son Jesus, thus adding a third dimension (depth) to the two dimensions that described/photographed Him in the Old Testament. This way He showed Himself completely, impossible to counterfeit and with an appearance that all could understand. God literally came in flesh and blood and lived for a time among us (see John 1:14). Any idea I might have of God the Father must be superimposed on Jesus. If the images/characters differ, then I have irrefutable proof that the image I have of the Creator God is a counterfeit image.

Jesus wants to remove my fear of God (see 1 John 4:18), opening before me a new, living path (see Hebrews 10:19-22) to reach my dad who has always been waiting for me and looking for me, who comes to meet me and loves me for who I am, not for what I will be. And precisely according to Jesus, to know GOD means to have immortality (see John 17:3).

Now I understand why the prince of the Matrix has always had the main objective of veiling from my eyes the face of my heavenly Father. This is a question of (eternal) life and (eternal) death!

The last judgment

The word “judgment” means sentence or decision. This judgment/sentence, after the judge carries out the logical activity of applying the law to the deed that he/she ascertains, can be of acquittal or conviction. In particular, the phrase “the last judgment” is used to mean the final divine sentencing of all God’s creatures.

What are the divine regulations that the “heavenly judge” will apply on the fateful Day of Judgment? Will He weigh the DEBTS and CREDIT accrued by the creature throughout his life, and see to which side the scales tip as a consequence? Isn’t human justice itself often symbolized by a pair of scales? Isn’t this the human mentality, my mindset?

If sin is not the wrong deed in itself that I can place on the scale of DEBT, but rather my distancing myself from my dad which starts in my heart where I begin to desire (and then seek and pursue to the end) a different equilibrium from that proposed to me by my Creator, then the simple divine rule which the “divine judge” will uphold is none other than His logical ascertainment of where my heart lies (see 1 Kings 8:39, Psalm 81:12, Jeremiah 3:17, Ezekiel 20:16). Are my most intimate desires in harmony or in contrast with the Creator and His equilibrium?

In other words, the divine final judgment so often portrayed in the human imagination with distressing, gloomy colors, will be nothing but a stand taken by the Creator God regarding my will to live close to Him and His harmonious plan, rather than distant from and independent of Him. And this stand/decision/sentence will bring as its consequence reconciliation forever with the source of life, and therefore immortality, or, definitive separation from the only source of life, which has as its inevitable epilogue non-life, also called death.

So it won't be a divine punishment. No! My dad, with great joy, should He find that my heart desires Him, but with deep sadness should my heart reveal a different plan that is independent of / distant from Him, will take the decision of handing me over to the destiny that I have chosen for myself. A destiny of eternal life with and near Him or the self-destruction that awaits those who unplug of their own will from the source of life.

Yes, even at the moment of the “last judgment” the immense love of the Creator for His creature will be palpable, seeing His immense joy for His prodigal children who decide to return home, and at the same time, noting the profound pain that will mark His face for the “sheep” that is “lost”, despite the fact that He has searched for it, loved it and waited for it all its life.

Now I understand that only my will to be independent from my heavenly Father can cause me to lose the immortality for which my Creator conceived and created me. His plan is life... unlimited life for all His beloved creatures. Non-life is a self-destructive choice made by the creature, not the Creator, founder and guarantor of free will.

Salvation from autodestruction

Horror, blood and tears daily accompany my walk as a creature in the Matrix, a world that is now more and more in the image and likeness of its treacherous prince. But no one suffers more than the Creator God Himself, because "God is love" and He is not two-faced (see James 1:17). I want to come out of the Matrix and discover the only true face / character of Jesus Christ's dad, the authentic God, and dismantle the counterfeit god that I have molded over the years with my imagination and with the help of "enlightened Matrixian philosophies" in my mind.

Being Christian style means being like Jesus. Being like Jesus means being in the image and likeness of the Father. But if I have a distorted image of God the Father, then everything crumbles and my innermost spirituality becomes a victim and slave of the oppressive religion of DEBT, a religion of blackmail and ransom, of duty, of punishment and vengeance.

God the Father needed time to show His goodness through His only son Jesus, but now He needs His fans to demonstrate to the universe how, through His grace, His bride, the Church, can reflect once again the three-dimensionally authentic image of its Creator and Savior, appearing before Him glorious, without DEBT or any such thing, holy and faultless (see Ephesians 5:27).

I have an instinctive need to see, touch and feel the real God who through his only son Jesus showed His marvelous character and infinite love for all His creatures, good and not so good, and demonstrated an irrepressible desire to save me and all the citizens of the Matrix from self-destruction. Yes, I feel the need to return to my home with my dad waiting for me with open arms, a smile on His face and tears of joy streaming down His cheeks... that home where the wolf will live with the lamb and the leopard will lie down next to the goat (see Isaiah 11:6-9). Dad, I'm coming and hope to bring with me many brothers/sisters who have, until now, chosen spiritual suicide and eternal death, i.e. distance from You, the only and inexhaustible source of life!

Matrixian genetics

Yin and yang

The concept of Yin and Yang, a much older version of today's infamous "balanced budget" between good/evil and CREDIT/DEBT, originates from an ancient Chinese philosophy, which most likely comes from the observation that day turns into night and night into day.

According to this Matrixian philosophy the entire manifested world rests on the two principles of yin and yang:

1. Yin and yang are opposites: everything has an opposite, not in absolute, but in relative terms. Nothing can be completely yin or completely yang; each contains the seed of its opposite.
2. Yin and yang have their roots in each other: they are interdependent, have a mutual origin, one cannot exist without the other.
3. Yin and yang decrease and increase: they are complementary, they mutually consume and sustain one another, they are constantly kept in equilibrium.
4. Yin and yang transform into one another: at a certain point, yin can transform into yang and vice versa.

This counterposition of the God of life and CREDIT (yin), who in certain moments is also the God of death and DEBT (yang), can only generate insecurity, fear and ambiguous, schizophrenic behavior in me.

The three-dimensionally authentic God shown to me by Jesus is not the god of two faces: of peace and of war, of mercy for some and vexed and annoyed, sending lightning bolts, arrows and curses to others.

Sure, sometimes it seems that even my polestar uses this language because unfortunately that is what has always been comprehensible to man's mindset.

Ever since the day in which, I, human being, wanted to be my own god and refused my Creator, I began to nurture feelings of fear toward my heavenly Father, just like Adam who "hid" when he heard His voice (see Genesis 3:9) because he was afraid. Fear, because God had been offended and must punish, and DEBT have become the Yang elements that form the divine father figure for the Matrixian man, placed calmly beside the positive Yin elements of life and CREDIT. This is why Jesus came to show me the Father, to help me to understand, see and feel Him... and ultimately to love Him. Yes, because as soon as I understand who God really is, I'll fall madly in love with Him.

A humanized god

My polestar emphasizes to me several times how I, creature, was created in the image and likeness of the Creator. It is sad to realize how we men have thought we could do the same to God: mold the image that we have of Him in our imperfect image and likeness.

Anthropomorphism is the attribution of human qualities and characteristics to animate or inanimate beings, or to natural or supernatural phenomena, and especially to divinities. In religion and mythology, anthropomorphism refers to the attribution of human likeness and/or characteristics of the emotional sphere to divine beings. The God of the Bible, too, thus becomes a “jealous” god, a god who “regrets”, who “takes vengeance”, “hates”, and manifests His “wrath”, His “anger” etc. These human emotional states, from my human reality in its Matrixian disorder, in my disease caused by the 666 Virus, are attributed to God to express His feelings and make Him accessible, comprehensible, near to me. It is clear that none of these words precisely reflect God’s nature, only the idea that the man chosen by GOD wanted to present when he used them. They are human characteristics that have analogies with God’s infinite perfection, making Him alive, accessible, welcoming.

Although my polestar uses this kind of language, comparing God’s behavior to that of men and making it accessible to human reason for a good motive, I also want to recognize the fact that the infinite and perfect work of God is not the finite, imperfect reason of man. God might accept being framed within human reason but His DNA is different.

Thus, an anthropomorphized, i.e. humanized, god is born, with the inevitable consequence of the degeneration of His perfection and holiness. The human race thus loses the key to the correct understanding of the Word of God, called the Bible. Every occurrence is interpreted through lenses that show a god who is similar to me in virtues and defects. Thus, the god who gets angry, who loses his patience, who sends fire and flames and then regrets his own deeds comes to life.

But what kind of god is this? Can an omnipotent god lose his patience? Can an omnipotent god regret his actions? Can a god of love get angry?

The Matrix finds its entire religion on anthropomorphism. The creator God needs a mother who loves those who follow him and hates everyone else, who tries sometimes in nice ways, but more often with harsh methods, to make his will prevail. . . . In short, a very human god with all the contradictions, defects and virtues.

If evil is distance from God, with such a concept of God it's not at all surprising that the creature wants to stay well away. What use is a god who is just like me or even worse than me?

In light of these observations, is it surprising that atheism has always found its cradle in so-called Christian countries? The affirmation "Men become atheists when they discover that they are better than their God" is awful for an authentic fan of Jesus to hear. But I must find the courage to listen: it invites me to perform a healthy examination of my conscience. Since atheism, in its more structured and elaborated forms, has developed around the so-called fans of Jesus, I should ask myself the following question: "What face of God do I reveal to the world, since men discover they are better than this God and deny Him?"

The unlimited in the limited

A "two-dimensional" (or 2D) reading of the Bible, which lacks the third dimension of depth shown to me by God the Son with His spoken, and above all lived, message, tells me that when GOD entered men's time, he behaved just like them, dirtying his hands with blood from violence committed against them and soiling those of His patriarchs, prophets, kings and fans. The three-dimensional (3D) image teaches however that the hands of the Father are, yes, soiled with blood, but that blood is His and it also belongs to the men He helped, cured and healed.

How can it be that the doubt has never before arisen that it is man, due to his desire for independence from God, which is a degenerative disease, to see and understand wrong, misinterpreting the reality of God shown to me by Jesus?

How is God different from the Matrixian men if like them he “gets angry, protests, invokes, judges, punishes, wounds, kills, cures, loves and saves”? How can God, source of life, produce death, which is the manifestation of His absence, of the non-God?

The story that my polestar presents is not the story that God would have wanted, the divine ideal. The Bible presents the story of man, heavily influenced by the political and (politicized) religious leaders of the time, in which God entered with His written word (the Bible) and incarnate Word (Jesus).

God’s revelation was given to fallible creatures who fully experienced their times, as children of their century. The truths about the real and authentic DNA of the character of God were thus transmitted with limited means (man and his language). The Word of God was thus revealed through human inadequacy.

I do not want to forget that the intrusion of “Infinite/ Unlimited God” in history is not at all easy for me “finite/ limited being” to comprehend. Thus, the eruption of God into history is slow and progressive due to my distance from Him, and thus from His language and His background. God speaks to me “stammering” to conform to my inadequacy, as an earthly parent does when he addresses a child still getting to grips with the language of its parents.

Can the infinite be totally contained/understood by the finite/limited? Certainly not! Indeed, my polestar, the Bible, through its many Gospels, does not offer me only one, but several answers, demonstrating that it's not a dogma that has "fallen from heaven", but rather human attempts to understand and pronounce what God has done through the life and teachings of Jesus for the human race. Attempts, i.e. getting close, not perfect definitions of the divine will and message. I try to grasp what the Creator God has done for me with human/limited/fallible ideas and comparisons, but I am completely aware that I will never grasp His face and character in an absolutely perfect way.

The creature Creator

My language, with all its words and terms, belongs to a limited, imperfect world. But I have to speak about God, the omnipotent and infinite Creator, the One who is not a part of this world. If I try to talk about God, my words can never correspond 100% to the intended reality, I can never grasp it perfectly. Only if God were a part of this world would things be different. But the God of the Bible is not a part of this world so when I talk about Him, my words can only have the value of getting close, of analogies, symbols or metaphors. They can never comprehend the infinite and the fullness of His perfection.

But at a certain point in the history of humanity, God decides to speak in the clearest manner possible to His creatures by coming to Earth as a man, coming face to face with His creature on the same level... as a creature in fact. So the crucial moment arrives in which the Creator becomes a creature.

Faced with the phenomenon of Jesus I cannot remain neutral, such is the strength that emanates from His figure. I can refuse Him but I cannot remain indifferent. What human mind could have generated the mad idea of the Omnipotent who voluntarily dethrones Himself, kneeling even before men to serve them? What fervid imagination could have come up with a Creator that allows Himself to be humiliated and finally killed by His own creatures? What enlightened mind could have revealed tens of extremely specific situations ahead of time such as those prophesied about Jesus centuries earlier by my polestar? All of human wisdom would not have been able to invent a story like Jesus'; the madness of God, my heavenly Father, was capable of this and accepted the indifference, the derision, the mockery, the spitting, the cross and death, just to give me back life despite my voluntary withdrawal from Him, source of all life.

Semi-omnipotence

“Ex nihilo nihil fit” is a Latin expression coined by the philosopher Lucretius that literally means, “Nothing comes from nothing”. This affirmation can be seen both from a purely physical point of view and from a human point of view. In the first case, it is a simplification of the law of conservation of energy, which affirms that the total quantity of energy inside an isolated physical system is constant. In the second case, the phrase can be interpreted as: “You’ll never get anything from life if you don’t give anything in exchange”.

The concept of creatio ex nihilo (creation from nothing) was only first mentioned in the religious doctrine of the Jews, an antithesis to the Matrixian doctrines of the time. In Christianity, the doctrine of creation from nothing contained in Genesis is confirmed. Later, in total opposition, the concept of evolutionism originates which surprisingly manages to infiltrate even into the beliefs of many fans of Jesus. The concept of an immediate creation in which the world is considered a direct effect of God's action (creation from nothing) is distinct from the concept of the next generation that allows for mediated causes, created earlier, that produce the beings in nature through a long evolutionary process.

This concept of a "semi-omnipotent" god is a spiritual cancer that brings other metastases with it. Indeed, the conception of a god who is not capable of creating the world out of nothing brings with it an extremely obvious consequence: a god equally incapable of creating forgiveness out of nothing (ex nihilo), and having, on the contrary, sadly need of a contribution/ransom to forgive. And the most evident and worrying metastasis is the natural consequence (another metastasis of the same Matrixian spiritual cancer) of not being able to understand, or even accept, salvation by grace... a free salvation that I do not have to earn with my works or sacrifices. This metastasis is, even if I don't want to admit it, absolutely inevitable. Because if I am not able to imagine the perfect God capable of pardoning for free, i.e. getting nothing in exchange, but only thanks to the sacrifice of a life (Jesus'), then my salvation is not 100% by grace bestowed by God the Father, having been paid/ ransomed. True salvation by grace on the other hand involves salvation created from nothing (ex nihilo), a completely free gift that requires no counterpart from me or from any other mediator or facilitator. The concept of God the father who is satisfied because his justice has been appeased by the suffering of God the Son, strips my heavenly Father of His grace because when the balance is made between giving and receiving, between DEBT and CREDIT, between sin and punishment, between the evil done by the human race and the punishment suffered by Jesus, the mercy and forgiveness of God the Father are annulled.

This concept of forgiveness that depends on the payment of a ransom, and is thus not free or by absolute grace, definitively causes the cancerous metastasis par excellence: doubt about the omnipotence of Creator God. Exactly the same cancer that is at the foundation of evolutionism, i.e. a god who is incapable of creating from nothing and who therefore must make use of the contribution of his own creation. If the one who presents himself to me as the creator of heaven and earth cannot manage to generate forgiveness within from nothing, then I nurture more than just a slight doubt about his omnipotence, I am really certain about his inadequacy. He is even more limited than an imperfect human parent who, despite his failings and inadequacy, manages to forgive his own child even though they might not deserve it. And when man feels better than his god, that's when atheism arises, another metastasis of the same Matrixian spiritual cancer. And how can you blame the atheists who refuse to accept a god who is worse than his own creature?

Indifference, hatred and selfishness keep for themselves; only love gives, gives itself, gives without receiving anything in exchange, gives despite knowing the cost of that gift. . . This is the type of forgiveness that is revealed throughout the whole Bible, my precious polestar. But the Matrixian idea of forgiveness is exactly the opposite. It has to do with a frowning, constantly offended, always-angry divinity whose wrath must somehow be propitiated, softened and appeased.

Doesn't Jesus say that I must be perfect like the Father in heaven (see Matthew 5:48)? And doesn't He also say that I have to forgive seventy times seven (see Matthew 18:22)? And doesn't the only son of God add that I must also love my enemies, i.e. those who offer me no good and rather only hurt me? But if I must be perfect like God, also loving those who give me no good in exchange and even forgiving those who continue to do me one wrong after another (enemies), then shouldn't God the Father (He who I must imitate according to Jesus) be the first to love (and therefore forgive) without expecting anything in return?

You cannot teach to forgive unconditionally without showing unconditional love. Otherwise, God the Father would be asking me to be better than Him.

But I, human being, am too influenced by the religion of DEBT and by the theology of the "balancing of the budget", an egocentric and selfish society in which the "do ut des" mentality reigns. Do ut des: Latin phrase, literally meaning, "I will give that you might give". The expression is still used today in everyday speech, generally to indicate one's own will to do something only for direct benefit.

Is it possible that I am so deep within the Matrix that I cannot imagine even in my wildest dreams anyone, not even my Creator God, who is completely foreign and indifferent to the continual search for his or her own selfish gain?

My polestar not only confirms to me that this is possible but, furthermore, in the book of Revelation in chapter 18, it assures me of the certainty of my citizenship in the Matrix.

Pardon, in law, is a measure issued by the state, through which the citizens that comply can obtain the annulment of a punishment or sanction, in other words a DEBT to the state. And when the pardon completely and definitively puts right the citizen's situation, it takes the name of "full pardon".

Harshness can only harden, retribution of evil with evil can only teach to do evil. In order to change, evil needs attention, action for recovery, reconciliation, welcome... ultimately, true and unconditional forgiveness is needed. To put it another way, completely free forgiveness that requires nothing in return... pardon by grace. All the rest is only the Matrix camouflaged and hidden under a cloak of superficial justice. Doesn't my polestar also tell me that I must conquer evil with good (see Romans 12:21)? Then how can I even remotely entertain the idea that death has been conquered with death, and evil with the sacrifice of a life?

But God is holy, completely separate from the Matrix and its cynically individualist, opportunist mentality. God is not even touched by the Matrix because the Matrix is distance from God. And God cannot be distant from Himself. I must therefore conclude that God, the omnipotent One who saves by forgiving, does it from nothing (ex nihilo) and definitively and with "full pardon", without requiring sacrifices from me or any substitute or scapegoat. Indeed, according to my polestar (see 2 Timothy 1: 9-10), full pardon was granted through Jesus since the dawn of time, long before He died on the cross. My polestar also tells me that Jesus destroyed death by making life and immortality shine by His life and His resurrection. God is God!

The prophet Malachi writes that God is expecting His church, the people made up of Jesus' fans, to carry out a true and great reformation, erase the ugly and false face portrayed to me for millennia by the wicked prince of the Matrix and restore the true face of my heavenly Father revealed to me by Jesus of Nazareth, the Christ, the Messiah, the Savior of the world. Perhaps the time has come in which the prophecy of Malachi is about to come true.

The diabolical circle

Semi-omnipotent God.

Indirect divine creation through an evolutionary path rather than the result of direct divine intervention "from nothing".

Semi-God of life.

Victory over death through the absence of God (death), not through His presence (life).

Semi-God of love.

Salvation/forgiveness redeemed through sacrifice rather than donated by grace (from nothing).

8

A spiritual atomic bomb

The term “apostasy” (from the Greek “far from”) defines the formal and willing abandonment of one’s own religion, and thus of one’s god.

In the Matrix, the vast majority of the citizens would not even remotely dream of defining themselves “apostates”. Rather, many define themselves true and sincere Christians, or followers of Jesus called the Christ. But are these so-called fans of Jesus, of which I am perhaps a part, really directing their devotion and worship to God the Son, Jesus, and the heavenly Father of the Bible, He who created heaven and earth?

In the entertainment business, pseudonyms are frequently used. A pseudonym is a fictitious name for a person, not their legal name, used by writers, singers, artists, sportsmen, politicians or anyone else. “Pen name”, “alias” and “nickname” are expressions with analogous meanings.

Am I truly and absolutely certain, without a shadow of doubt, that my god to whom I render my worship is who I think he is, and not another entity that has willingly usurped the name of the Creator God as his pseudonym?

To find a sure, clear answer to this vital question, I must make a careful comparison between the entity to whom I refer, performing a detailed analysis of his DNA/character, and the God proposed and described to me by my polestar.

If the apparently divine entity to whom I turn in prayer has a character more similar to that of the God of love shown to me three-dimensionally by His only son Jesus, then I can relax and feel calm. But if, by any chance, the character is more like the biblical description of the enemy of souls, i.e. Satan the devil (also old serpent), then I am certainly navigating in troubled waters. Perhaps despite my steely conviction that I have always turned to the good God, I discover today that, according to the parameters of my Shepherd and Savior Jesus, I am an “apostate”, a worshipper of a false god... a different god to the Creator of heaven and earth. A god in the image and likeness of the creature rather than the Creator. If this corresponds to the truth that would be embarrassing to say the least for me, a committed fan of Jesus.

But could such a chilling discovery be possible? It would really be a spiritual atomic bomb for a large number of Jesus’ so-called fans.

When I read my beloved polestar, the Bible, it confirms to me that already in the past, in the Old Testament days, God’s people often wandered away from their God. And they often worshipped other gods completely unknowingly. These “apostasies” (wandering away from God) were the main reason for which God chose and sent prophets throughout the history of the human race. And these messengers have always indicated with strength and clarity a U-turn, i.e. a return to the only true God. Perhaps the most famous prophet who invited God’s people to take a firm stand on the side of the Creator, and thus against the false god called Baal in those days, was Elijah. And, as it happens, the Old Testament concludes in the book of Malachi with the promise of a last prophet, just before the second coming of the Messiah Jesus, with precisely the Spirit and power of Elijah.

Isn’t it incredible? The omniscient God who knows the future, and therefore today’s Matrixian times, who foresees for these days a prophet like Elijah, and thus, a messenger with the same message regarding a U-turn that reconciles with the only true God. And if this is the strategy of the omniscient Creator, that means that God’s people in these last days are once again worshipping Baal, a false god. And just as it happens, the Baal of Elijah’s days had many things in common with the “Christian god” of today... starting precisely with human sacrifices to appease the divine wrath. Baal was the personification of the destructive power of the sun and the desert wind. Baal became the Zeus of the Greeks, the Jupiter of the Romans and the Thor of the Germanic and Nordic peoples. His worship was adapted across different cultures, changing name (!!!), thus incorporating itself so effectively, and in a surprisingly invisible manner, in the most diverse religious and cultural circles. An entity that deliberately and deceitfully infiltrates the religions that it encounters in time and space. This is the chameleon-like pseudo-god who changes name/pseudonym/alias, depending on what is convenient at the time, to usurp the throne of the only true God (see 1 Timothy 1:17). A self-styled god with a nice name but a terrible character: moody, irritable, grumpy, vindictive and cold.

If the true God, omniscient and omnipresent, as well as omnipotent, considers it fitting to send another messenger with the Spirit of Elijah, then His people in these times of mine has a conception of god that is more similar to that of Baal, than to the conception that His son Jesus, the only one to see Him face to face, transmitted to me. This is why Revelation chapter 18 strongly asserts that the people of God in the last days will be in the Matrix and invites them to change their direction and come out of this spiritual confusion.

This is truly a “spiritual atomic bomb”: I am the unknowing worshipper of a false god. . . a god with a “true name”, but with a “false character”. And if this god of mine is a false copy, then it can only be the Old cherub Lucifer who wanted (and still wants, now more than ever) to take the place of the Creator of the universe.

It doesn't matter if my personal god bears the right name. What counts is that he has the right character, holy and perfect, and the DNA of love and life, the importance of which Jesus stressed to me in His many parables. And if that

DNA test reveals to me, despite the similitude of the name, substantial character differences, then my personal concept of “god” has been infiltrated by doctrines of demons that bear the signature of ex-Lucifer, today known as Satan, alias the prince of the Matrix.

I am truly speechless!

I, prodigal son

Force, suffering, torture and the annihilation of others are all forms of imbalance that draw away from the Creator and His perfect harmony and cannot therefore generate life. They deny the beatitudes with which Jesus began His teaching in public. They deny the creation, they deny that man is in God’s image, and above all, they deny the parable of the prodigal son told to me by Jesus precisely to help me to understand my heavenly Father and see His loving face which is well disposed towards me despite all my poverty and inadequacy. Isn’t this what the prodigal son experienced when he returned to his father?

And doesn’t Jesus also tell me, with surgical precision, how I myself, as the figure of the son who remained at home with the Father, do not understand or accept the free pardon of the Father’s infinite love, preferring revenge, or at least the imposition of a ransom? Wouldn’t precisely the other son of God the Father want the brother to pay a high price, in a sort of purgatory, for his misdeeds?

But the father doesn’t care about the wasted money, the injustice He has suffered or even the suffering that was caused Him. No! The father is only happy... just happy!

A dead end

I have always asked myself how I can obtain salvation and immortality. In general, the answer given to this question is that as well as accepting Jesus it is important to be a good person and to do good deeds, even if we are not always as “good” as we’d like others to believe. However, the important thing is not to steal, kill, etc. . . in other words to be a good citizen. On the one hand I accept the “divine” free CREDIT Jesus offers me as my Savior, while on the other, through my works, I show the “human” CREDITS I have personally earned; by doing this I demonstrate that the CREDIT (or grace in theological terms) of God the Father is not sufficient to achieve my salvation/immortality. And so, God the Father is semi-omnipotent. But all this is in net contrast with what my polestar says.

Salvation is not at all made up of good actions (CREDIT) weighed up on the scales of human justice in opposition to sins (DEBT), because I would lose however you look at it since it is written that no one is just, not even one. . . everyone has allowed themselves to be corrupted by the Matrix (see Romans 3:10-12).

Do I realize that my righteousness is like a filthy rag (see Isaiah 64.6) and that I am at a dead end? And am I, at the same time, deeply aware that I am saved by grace, only by the “divine” CREDIT through faith? And that doesn’t come from me; it is the gift of God the Father (see Ephesians 2:8). By grace, and no longer by my own deeds or those of someone else in my place otherwise grace would no longer be grace (see Romans 11:6) and the gift would become a purchase. And do I understand that my Father in heaven saves me not by good deeds that I perform (CREDIT) that balance my sins (DEBTS), but by His immense love, a truly unlimited “divine” CREDIT (see Titus 3:5) capable of covering even the biggest sins?

For God so loved the world, that He gave his one and only Son, so that whoever believes in Him shall not die but shall have immortality (see John 3:16). I finally realize that I am saved not because of what I do, have and/or am, but because of what my dad has done for me. Yes, balancing DEBT and CREDIT is definitely a dead end!

Dialogue between the deaf

When a child grows up speaking only one language, he/she can only express all concepts in that language. He does not know any other languages and so they are tools that he cannot use. The child is limited to the use of the only language that he knows.

The Creator God, due to His nature and His character, knows only one language: the language of love and life... ultimately, the language of CREDIT and of good. Indeed, my polestar never ceases to emphasize to me that God is love and God is life.

On the other hand, I, man, from the time I decided to distance myself from my Creator and His language of love and life, have created a new language for myself, one that conforms to my new character: the language of hatred and of death... ultimately, of DEBT and of evil.

Thus, since the distance was created, the dialogue between the Creator and His creature has become a “dialogue between the deaf” just as in the famous story of the tower of Babel in which people who had understood each other perfectly thanks to speaking the same language, suddenly no longer understood each other.

How can I say that God, who is omnipotent, is deaf? Can't someone who is omnipotent do everything? God can certainly do everything except one: go against His own nature. Therefore, although God understands (but does not agree with) my new language of DEBT and death, He cannot use it because He does not speak this language.

To use it would be to change, to lose His holiness and His perfection. And I know for sure that God does not change; He is holy and infinitely perfect.

Thus, God's objective is that of getting me to return to the old divine language experienced by man in Eden. He brought this strategy forward, sending His only son Jesus to my world, showing me a completely different language from the one I am used to using. "Love your enemies" . . . and many other of Jesus' statements echo in the ears of His fans, still troubling them today. Yes, because they are expressions from another language, another mindset, another character. Jesus submitted to this language by coming to this Earth, not shying away even for a second, not even from the fatal consequences of this language of hatred/DEBT/vengeance, but He remained completely foreign to it. He continued undaunted to communicate in His language and that of the Father who was in heaven. He never sullied the divine language or, worse still, mixed the two languages. . . . He never stooped to compromise. Everything He did was according to the will of the Father and His character and heavenly language of love and life. Every negative element Jesus experienced on my Earth, including the death on the cross, was the consequence of my human language, which He suffered because He loves me, but they were never elements that He wanted or asked for. Jesus wanted to complete the mission the Father had given Him without the slightest hint of the human language of death and revenge. He came to bring

CREDIT and only CREDIT and not to remind me of my DEBT. He overcame evil with good, not in the sense that He counterbalanced evil with an analogous, proportional portion of good, but in the sense that He communicated only good and thus showed that evil doesn't have to exist. Death doesn't have to exist, not even if I have committed the error of distancing myself from my heavenly Father. God and His son Jesus have answered my language of evil only with the purest, most perfect good. The evil Jesus suffered (to death itself), was not necessary in God's plan of salvation... It was not even remotely a part of the plan. The language of God does not contain the word "death" and cannot therefore even use that word. I, rebel creature, inserted death with my new language and character. Jesus' life on this Earth was therefore shaped by the divine strategy designed for my salvation, but also by human will, which (of its own free will) imposed on the Creator imperfect, sad pathways, steeped in elements like death, revenge and hatred. But these elements suffered by Jesus were never desired or thought to be necessary. God wanted to do without them but my free will actually limited the Almighty, altering His ways. Wasn't it God's plan for the people of Israel to guide them straight out of Egypt and marvelously towards the promised land and wasn't it the "stiff neck" of the creature that obliged the Creator to take an alternative route through the desert, a longer route which was tiring and full of sad experiences of rebellion? Only when I allow the Spirit of God to teach me the language of my dad will this confounded "dialogue between the deaf" end.

Multiple death sentences

My polestar tells me categorically that “the wages of sin is death” (see Romans 6:23). But what does this mean? What “wages” are we talking about? The fans of DEBT and the gurus of the balancing of the budget have infected the minds of the citizens of the Matrix with a diabolical virus linked precisely to the comprehension of this very true Bible verse. They have inculcated me with the idea that as soon as I commit my first sin I am immediately destined to receive the “wages of death”. Thus, infinite death sentences weigh on my shoulders. In practice, each sin committed by any human being automatically creates death. In other words, every single behavior has consequences that not even the omnipotent Creator God can stop or annul.

It follows that the unbalanced behavior (sin) of the creature is stronger than the Creator, generating unmodifiable negative consequences. The only solution for the “not very omnipotent creator” is to make someone else die in my place, to satisfy this obscure “wages of sin”.

The fans of CREDIT, on the other hand, have got it straight that so-called “sin” is essentially distance from God and therefore from the source of life. Therefore, my action outside of the divine equilibrium distances me from life and therefore, brings me closer to the only possible epilogue: death. But drawing close to death does not mean reaching death. It is a PROGRESSIVE path and not an absolute, single act. And if it is a progressive path, then I can also make a U-turn (always with the help of my Creator and Savior) and take up my path towards the source of life again. Thus, the “wages of sin”, or the death that would have been the inevitable conclusion to my path, becomes distant again. Death is therefore an AVOIDABLE wage, as long as my distance from the heavenly vital equilibrium is not definitive and irreversible. That is why the plan of salvation designed by my dad doesn't require my death or that of a substitute! This death to which I had drawn close is still avoidable thanks to a U-turn!

My whole life, and that of my brothers and sisters, evolves between the pole of good, the source of all life, and distance from that pole. The "wage" therefore is the FINAL consequence of my entire life path... in other words, the so-called last judgment. That is why death cannot remotely claim a tribute or a ransom for every wrong deed I do. Ultimately, sin is not a single wrong action; it is a choice of life away from my own Creator. That's why this very famous Bible verse finishes like this: "because the wages of sin is death but the gift of God is eternal life in Christ Jesus, our Lord" (see Romans 6:23 again). This is the divine view of the "wages": death far from God or life with God... death or life. Death cannot co-exist with life! The wages of sin, or my death (or that of a hypothetical substitute), cannot co-exist with the gift of God which is infinite life. If my wages, at the end of time, is immortality, then I have made a U-turn leaving death completely high and dry.

Based on my polestar, the Bible, I want to have faith in my dad who is in heaven and who offers me, His beloved creature, His grace through His only begotten son Jesus. Glory to God, my marvelous dad!

Truths that cannot be confessed

The Matrix is the kingdom of darkness and opaqueness. In the Matrix, light is shed only where it is convenient to do so. Everything else is covered by an obscure cloak of silence. Even the Bible is obscured where it contains deeds that cannot be confessed because they are truths capable of causing the wicked empire of material and spiritual DEBT to crumble. And anyone who dares to lift this mendacious cloak is shut up as one who tramples on the wholesome Christian doctrine.

In its Old Testament, my polestar speaks to me of a very mysterious character: Enoch. The fifth chapter (verses 18 – 24) of the first book of the Bible tells me that Enoch, after having lived on the planet Earth for 365 years in harmony, disappeared because the Creator Himself took Enoch to be with Him, granting him the immortality offered to all His creatures in the human race. Even the New Testament of my beloved polestar talks about it again and reminds me of this fact which is as sensational as it is eloquent. In no uncertain terms, it explains to me that Enoch received immortality because of his faith in the Creator, because he pleased God (see Hebrews 11:5).

The truth that cannot be confessed lies in the fact that all this happened centuries before the coming of Jesus to Earth and therefore before His death and resurrection. God the Father therefore forgave Enoch's sins and granted him immortality (in theological terms, salvation or eternal life), without anyone having paid for those sins... God regards a sinner (as Enoch certainly was) like a son who pleased Him and He forgot Enoch's sins. That's it! I therefore discover a story, just like many others in the Old Testament (for example, those of Moses or Elijah), that shows a heavenly father who forgives one of His creatures despite having received nothing.

I thus discover an omnipotent Father who is not dependent on the presence and collaboration of His opposite (non-life) to forgive. A Creator Father who is not a slave to the perverse logic of human justice, which is based on revenge or, in more fortunate cases, on ransom. A Father who gives unlimited love and life to any one of His creatures who has decided, like Enoch, to walk beside Him and close to Him.

In penal law, “pardon” means a provision for individual clemency, through which only a certain detained convict benefits and receives a pardon, with or without conditions, which reduces or annuls the main penalty or substitutes it with a less grievous one. Isn’t the possibility of “gratiam ad personam” foreseen even in the Matrix without conditions? And if the creature is capable of offering a pardon to his “enemy”, how much more capable should the Creator God be since He presents Himself to me as the God of love and life? Yes, my Creator has both the capacity and the desire to annul/pardon my DEBT without asking death to assist in evening out the false balance between good and evil. Dad, why do so many fans of your only son Jesus prefer to see you as a cold, impassive judge who requires me to pay for the damage done, rather than a loving father that can’t wait to embrace me again as soon as I decide to make a U-turn and return home to Him? How is it possible that miserable human grace manages at times to be truly free and unconditional while Your divine love must be redeemed and paid for in each and every case? How come we human beings see it as negative that You, Father, are good and clement (see Matthew 20:15)?

Resurrection

Jesus' resurrection was the most compelling and extraordinary event that changed the apostles' lives. It was so moving and fundamental that each of the four gospel writers wrote about it in his own gospel.

Despite the fact that Jesus told His disciples beforehand that He would die and that He would, however, be resurrected from the dead by His Father on the third day, that Sunday morning no one believed in His resurrection yet. After the death on the cross, the "show" is over, the people have gone home, everyone has gone to bed, life is a routine that continues every day. Some, however, could not sleep and, driven by curiosity, they get up and go to Jesus' tomb to see what might possibly happen. At Jesus' tomb, all is silent; the deep still of the night is palpable. Suddenly though, the soldiers who had been called to guard Jesus' tomb and all those present who have come from all over, expect something might happen.

Jesus lies in His tomb waiting for God the Father to resurrect Him. Suddenly, on Sunday morning, before dawn, God's voice resounds through Jesus' tomb, enters His ears and wakes His cold body to new life. The soldiers see a dazzling light that blinds them and they hear the voice of the angel who calls Jesus to wake Him from His mortal sleep. The soldiers are afraid and run away, breaking all the orders they've been given and transgressing their duty to keep guard. There was a death sentence for the desecration of a tomb so the soldiers all risked their lives by running away. But where do they go? They go to someone who can protect them, to the high priest who still had a strong influence on the Roman governor despite the Roman military occupation. The high priest, besides assuring them that nothing will happen to them, asks them to spread the lie that Jesus has not been resurrected but that His disciples have stolen His body while the soldiers slept. In exchange, each soldier receives a fistful of coins (see Matt 28: 13).

Hundreds, perhaps thousands, of people didn't go to bed that night so they could wait with trepidation and suspense for what might possibly happen. The women, driven by their courage, were the first to go to the sepulcher; after them, some of the apostles went too. Encouraged by the women's account, they plucked up their courage too, went to the sepulcher and found it empty, just as the women had told them. All the people present that night were eyewitnesses to Jesus' resurrection.

With Jesus' resurrection, the angels, who during the agony of the cross could not intervene to comfort their Master, now entered in action. Finally, they can unleash their energy to glorify the Son of God who has conquered death. A mighty angel was sent by God the Father to open Jesus' tomb. Two angels dressed in white remain in Jesus' empty tomb to tell of the marvelous miracle of His resurrection. When men keep silent, angels speak. The angels transmit the message of the risen Messiah to the women who arrive at the sepulcher before dawn breaks:

- ➔ "Do not be afraid. You are looking for Jesus of Nazareth who they crucified. He is risen, He is not here" (see
- ➔ Matthew 28:5-6). "Why do you seek the living among the dead? He is not here for He is risen!" (see Luke 24:5-6). And, since the women still cannot believe their ears, an
- ➔ angel invites them: "Come and see the place where He lay!" (Matthew 28:6).

An extraordinary message! All heaven celebrates Jesus' resurrection; the angels rejoice.

Death is dead

Jesus' resurrection is important for several reasons. It testifies of God's immense power. To believe in the resurrection is to believe in the omnipotent God, giver of all life. If God exists and if He created the universe and has power over it, then He also has the power to raise from the dead. If He doesn't have that power, He is not a god worthy of my faith and my worship. Only He who created life can resurrect after death, only He can overturn the non-life that is death itself and only He can remove the dart of death and have victory over the tomb (see 1 Corinthians 15:54-55). By resurrecting Jesus from the tomb, God the Father reminds me of His absolute sovereignty.

Jesus' resurrection is a witness to the resurrection of human beings, which is my hope and the hope of all fans of Jesus. Unlike other religions, Christianity has a founder who transcends death and promises His followers that the same thing will happen to them. All the other religions were founded by men and prophets who ended up in the tomb. As a fan of Jesus, I find comfort in the fact that my God became man, died and came back to life. The tomb could not hold Him. He lives and sits today at the right hand of God the Father in heaven.

Jesus the Christ died, was buried and rose on the third day according to my very precious polestar. In the same way, the resurrection is the triumphant and glorious victory for each fan of Jesus. He is coming again! His dead fans will rise again and the fans that are still alive at His return will be changed and will receive new, glorified bodies (see 1 Thessalonians 4:13-18).

Jesus' resurrection is the foundation of everything. It is because Jesus rose again that He is the Savior. Jesus' resurrection transmits to me the power of the hope of immortality. It is the demonstration that the Creator God had the power (and the willingness) to resurrect me from the dead. It guarantees that those who believe in Jesus will not remain dead, but will be resurrected to eternal life. Immortality is my glorious hope! And death is dead!

Spiritual metabolism

I am not omniscient, I live in the time and space that are the boundaries to my existence and define me as a creature and so I can only intuit the mystery of the origin of the Matrix. I only know that the creature distancing himself from His Creator mutated my DNA and that of the whole creation, and in this tragedy, somehow, the universe also got involved. But I also know from my polestar (see Revelation 21: 1-8) that thanks to the Creator's love for His creature and for creation, the Matrix will come to an end. Before my heavenly Father, I am like a child incapable of grasping the thought and action of the father, but I feel in the depths of my heart that He loves me and that His reassuring promises will come true.

Doesn't my polestar explain to me unequivocally that now I see in an obscure way in only two dimensions (2D), but then I will also see the depth (3D); now I know in part, but then I will know fully? (see 1 Corinthians 13:12)

What I am lacking today, is precisely the sense of total trust in my father, who is none other than the Creator of the entire universe. I still haven't metabolized with humility that my understanding has its limits and that this must lead to an action, on my part, of complete surrender and trust.

Assuming that I can comprehend the action of the infinite and omnipotent Creator God and the way He loves me is real presumption... a miserable attempt to judge God, neglecting to think that at the end of the day I find myself in this vale of tears only because of my separation from Him (see Isaiah 59: 1-4). I am certainly no better than Adam, no better than those who came before me or those beside me today.

I never want to forget that "it is by grace that I am saved" (see Ephesians 2:8), grace from nothing, completely free, that allows me to rediscover the ancient immortality promised to me by He who loves me as no one has ever loved me. My beloved polestar, the Bible, explains to me that even the angels attempt to comprehend this marvelous love of God expressed right in His Word (see 1 Peter 1:12). My father is asking me to have humility and a sense of trust. Is He asking too much?

Reunification with the infinite

A polestar is a star that is visible to the naked eye, approximately in line with a planet's rotational axis, and points to one of the celestial poles. The quintessential polestar is the one that in the current era points to the Earth's celestial North Pole. In astronomical navigation, its position is an infallible indicator of the direction of a geographical pole, and its angular height enables the calculation of the latitude.

The Bible is the polestar of Jesus' fans. . . It is not God. It is to be the light that indicates a direction/path towards a destination. Doesn't one of the Bible authors tell me that it is a lamp to my feet and a light on my path (see Psalm 119:105)? The Bible isn't even the path. . . the path is Jesus (see John 14:6). And it is not even the absolute truth. . . this too is only Jesus. The Bible makes no sense and holds no truth outside of Jesus. The existence of Jesus of Nazareth, His life, His death, His resurrection, are the sense of every phrase in the Bible. They are the truth in everything that the Bible announces to me. My polestar does not exist for its own sake... without Him it is empty, totally empty. Without Him, it is false. It exists only because it was accomplished by Him. It gets its meaning and its truth from Him... The Bible without Jesus would be nothing more than pleasantries for religious people.

Jesus, even though this assertion might bother me, is not the destination... my destination must be God the Father! Jesus Himself in person stresses how important it is for me to rediscover the image of my Father in heaven:

➔ "I am the way, the truth and the life; no one comes to the Father except by me" (see John 14:6)! He came to show me the Father and to bring me to the Father.

My spiritual vision becomes more and more clear. My knees even begin to tremble because my decades-old certainties begin to creak. The Bible is the polestar that indicates the path, which is Jesus. Indeed, it's precisely the Bible that tells me about Jesus and helps me to know Him. Jesus, in turn, is the path because He is the truth and therefore the only messenger of absolute truth who wants to bring me to the destination. And the only true destination for a creature is that of returning to the arms of their Creator. The Bible shows me Jesus, who takes me to the Father.

I really need to be reconciled with my dad, the Creator, source of all life. And that's why God the Son, Jesus, came all that way to come to my planet in flesh and blood. It's up to me to accept this reconciliation offered to me by Jesus who has brought me a letter of love from heaven, finally (and once again) embracing my loving Father, He who even knows the number of hairs on my head and loves me with a perfect, immortal love.

Face to face

Omnipotent

Every day Jesus performed miracles: He healed lepers, restored sight to the blind, forgave prostitutes and publicans and cancelled their DEBT; He liberated people possessed by demons, resurrected the dead and brought life and hope even to the darkest, gloomiest places. What a sight it must have been for His fans to walk with Him along the roads of Galilee, admiring His powerful work of salvation and hearing His message that restored life to even the deadest of souls. In short, He really seemed omnipotent. And indeed, He said that what He did came from the Father, He who is omnipotent.

But the most incredible thing about it all was that, looking His fans straight in the eye, He told them that they too would perform marvelous works like His... actually, even more powerful! Yes, I want to read the exact words of Jesus as reported by my polestar:

- ➔ “Verily, verily, I say to you that whoever believes in me will also do the works that I do; and will do even greater works, because I am going to the Father” (John 14:12). Astonishing! It really beggars belief. Even His apostles took Him seriously and started to fly high like their Master. What glorious times those of the first Christians must have been, in which every day thousands of sincere souls joined / were baptized. The prince of the Matrix and all his demons seemed no longer to exist. And yet, history teaches me that these glorious days did not last long.

Matrixian twin

This sad reality still persists today in the most spiritually dark times ever. The fans of Jesus, the so-called Christians, no longer know the unlimited power that the Christians of the first hour experienced. Today, I, fan of Jesus am a very normal person. It's a pity that normality is dictated by the standards of the Matrix. I tire easily, I get angry often, I lose hope just as quickly... In short, I seem a twin of the Matrixian man. The spitting image.

➔ Jesus tells me today: "...if you have faith as small as a mustard seed, you can say to this mountain: 'Move here or there', and it will move; and nothing will be impossible for you" (see Matthew 17:20). Where is the unlimited power of Jesus that should make me able even to move mountains? Where are the resurrections of the dead?

I, fan of Jesus of the Matrixian times, show evident signs of psychological, emotional and spiritual abuse suffered and it clips my wings. I am so psychologically burdened by DEBT and suffering that I have chosen as the symbol of being a fan of Jesus the instrument of martyrdom that massacred my beloved Savior to death: the cross. But why have I decided to put before my eyes such a horrifying and humiliating symbol all my life? Can this symbol arouse in me positive forces full of joy? And if Jesus had been killed in an electric chair would my symbol today be that chair? What state were Jesus fans in just after the infamous and excruciating death of Jesus on the cross? Did they move mountains or hide under their beds like little children who have just had a bad dream about a monster?

During the first period of Christianity, judging by the study of the catacombs, the symbol of the cross – scratched in to the limestone or traced with color – can be quite rarely found; it is certainly less frequent than the other symbols of Christianity (like the fish, bread or other symbols). Only after Constantine's decree did the spread of the symbol of the cross expand.

But wasn't Constantine that Matrixian emperor who changed the day of rest from the seventh day to the first? And isn't this period deeply dark from a spiritual point of view, very different from the powerful Christians of the first hour? Who fought for four centuries to gain acceptance for this very ancient symbol, until then a Matrixian one, by the fans of Jesus? Did the Creator God need to copy the Matrixian symbols or did He invent/create from nothing things/symbols that have nothing in common with the Matrix? Hasn't it always been the prerogative of the enemy to steal and infiltrate with his own virus, then pass off the counterfeit as the original? Wasn't Jesus' resurrection the trigger for the power of Jesus' fans? What did these powerful and authoritative fans of Jesus talk about continually as they walked the streets of Jerusalem (before) and the whole world (afterward): of the infamous death of Jesus which everyone knew about and had seen, or His incredible, majestic, supernatural resurrection? What did they fix before their eyes and in their discussions, the unlimited life or the excruciating death on the cross? And if that bloody death was an obvious consequence of human (and thus also my) wickedness and of separation from the Creator, doesn't constantly placing this cross before me actually hide someone's desire to continually remind me of my DEBT, completely burying my most ambitious expectations of reflecting the powerful light of Jesus in the Matrix? Is it chance that my polestar gives me a premonition that the fans of Jesus in the last days will be called by a new name (see Isaiah 62:2) and will be gathered under a new symbol/banner (see Isaiah 11:12)? Could it be a banner that is a symbol of life, and thus of my unlimited CREDIT received from my dad, or of DEBT and my faults? Isaiah, the prophet of God, also says that the Matrixian princes will literally be terrified before this banner (see Isaiah 31:9). Does my current banner terrify the Matrix or has it actually been assimilated and digested so willingly that it has even become a globally accepted symbol in today's society, a society even darker than Sodom and Gomorrah? Can the symbol of the vital omnipotence of God be so pleasing to the forces of evil? Shouldn't it rather "frighten" the prophets of DEBT, of death and rebellion? Doesn't my polestar again say that I must overcome evil with good (see Romans 12:21)? So how can I even remotely entertain the belief that death has been conquered with death, evil with the sacrifice of a life, and accept the instrument of death as a symbol of life? Has God really overcome evil with evil?

A divided mind

Schizophrenia is a psychiatric illness characterized, according to scientific convention, by the persistence of symptoms of altered thought, behavior and affect. The term derives from the Greek words schizo (divided) and phren (mind), "divided mind". There is a dissociation of thought, in which there is loss of the associative connections commonly present between ideas. The thoughts become fragmented, bizarre, inconclusive. Here are some thought disassociations that the Matrix has injected into my veins since my first day of life:

– The God of love is also the god of reckoning and revenge. Can perfect love be vindictive? Doesn't my polestar tell me that love covers sin (see Proverbs 10:12)?
 – The God, who does not have life (because then he could also have death), but who is life, every now and then however also sends death. Can a bucket full of only orange colored paint color me with any other color?

– The cross, that device diabolically invented to separate the life from the creature with merciless cruelty, magically becomes the symbol of the victory over death. Did Jesus conquer death at the moment of His death or His resurrection? At what moment did He strip death of its power? Would He be remembered today as the victorious bringer of salvation / immortality if He had not been resurrected?

Am I really affected by symptoms of a schizophrenically divided mind that has sadly caused me to lose the logical, common sense associative connections between things, linking, serenely and without any perplexity, opposing concepts? Just like the Matrixian philosophy of Yin and Yang, or like the much acclaimed balance that adds DEBT and CREDIT in a magnificently Matrixian equilibrium.

I, masochist

Masochism is the desire to be submissive to and at the mercy of someone who can do whatever they want to me. Therefore, masochism means that particular “perversion” that consists in the fact that the individual is obsessed by the idea of being absolutely and unconditionally submissive to a person, being treated by them in a haughty manner, (even) to the point of suffering humiliation and torture.

Could it be that I have become a spiritual masochist, i.e. a fan of Jesus who allows the theology of DEBT to enslave, humiliate and ultimately break me? A masochist who constantly wants to have before his eyes the peak moment of my Savior’s suffering, who wants to feel the weight of DEBT on his conscience and believe in a diabolical equilibrium between good and evil? Isn’t my concept of God’s character, His commandments and will becoming a powerful means to keep me subjugated, subservient and therefore powerless to really and thoroughly be reborn to new life, a life of strength tempered with divine humility since it grasps the lifeline of CREDIT offered to me by the Savior of the world?

Spiritual depression

I want to ask myself a second question to try to understand why Jesus’ fans today seem like mere faded photocopies of the fans of two thousand years ago. . . suffering from real spiritual depression. I want to see how my polestar describes the spiritual communication of Jesus’ fans with God (called prayer) in both the Old and the New Testaments.

Talking about the three levels of communication (i.e. Verbal, Paraverbal and Non-verbal) is a simple task nowadays.

1. So I start with the first of the three levels, which describes the verbal component of communication. This indicates what is said: this element is characterized by the choice of words, the logical construction of the sentences and the use of certain terms rather than others.

2. The second aspect is paraverbal, i.e. the way in which something is said. It refers to the tone, the speed, the volume, etc. of the voice.

3. The third aspect is non-verbal: everything that is transmitted through the posture, movements, but also through the position occupied in space (which area you occupy in an environment, the distance from the speaker, etc. and the aesthetic aspects (the way one dresses or grooms oneself).

In my beloved polestar, the Bible, the children of God used different forms of prayer. When they prayed they used words (verbal communication), sometimes music too (paraverbal communication) and sometimes also dance (non-verbal communication). It is known that the body is also involved in communication with God, because human beings also express themselves using their bodies (non-verbal communication).

The Word of God has reached me in written form and therefore automatically exalts the verbal aspect at the expense of the other two aspects, which are just as important. By focusing primarily on the consequently undervalued aspects (paraverbal and non-verbal), I notice that people used to pray standing up and looking upwards with their hands held high, as the pilgrims used to when they all came up together to Jerusalem during the year for the feast days which were dedicated to the heavenly Father. When a Jew prayed raising his eyes towards heaven or with his gaze turned to the Father, he would always stand in order to have the feeling of drawing nearer to heaven, closer to God. Jesus, for example, when He wanted to pray, would often go up on the mounts, both to experience peace in the silence and in order to be “closer” to His dad who lives in heaven. Jesus and Paul often prayed standing with their hands held high (see Luke 9: 16; John 11: 41; 17: 1; Mark 6: 41).

But considering the spiritual depression that I am experiencing as a fan of Jesus in these last Matrixian days, I want to see how my polestar describes to me the prayers of the only true example: Jesus Christ. All the other patriarchs and prophets, priests and kings, cannot guarantee that I have a perfect comprehension of how to experience communication with God the Father, especially in times of crisis in which I need to “move mountains” . . . Yes, I want to take a look at the most powerful prayers of God the Son that have changed the course of the history of God’s people and the entire human race.

Cases of standing and looking upwards

- ➔ – The multiplication of the loaves and fishes: “Then Jesus took the five loaves and the two fishes, looked up and blessed them. He broke them and gave them to His disciples so they could distribute them to the people. They all ate until they were full and the pieces which were left were picked up, twelve baskets full” (Luke 9: 16,17).
- ➔ – The resurrection of Lazarus: So they removed the stone. Jesus lifted His eyes to heaven and said, “Father I thank You because You have heard my prayer”. Having said this, He cried out with a loud voice, “Lazarus, come forth!” The dead man came forth, with his hands and feet bound in strips of linen, and his face covered with a shroud. Jesus said to them, “Loose him and let him go” (John 11: 41-44).

- ➔ – The calming of the storm: Having woken up, he called to the wind and said to the sea, “Peace! Be still!” The wind ceased and there was great calm. He said to them, “Why are you so afraid? Do you no longer have faith?” And they were filled with great fear and said to one another: “Who is he that even the winds and the sea obey him?” (Mark 4:39-41)

Jesus, in this miracle, as in many others (e.g. the healing of the leper in Luke 5:13 and the liberation of the demon-possessed man in Luke 8:26-38) which are just as powerful, does not even pray but He is aware that the Father is with Him, He talks with his face bared to the ferocious tempest. He does not kneel, He does not bow His head and He does not close His eyes. He talks to His dad with His face uncovered and, in the same way, He faces evil with His face uncovered.

Cases on the knees

- ➔ – The agony in Gethsemane shortly before His crucifixion: “He removed Himself from them about a stone’s throw and got on His knees to pray, saying: ‘Father, if it is Your will, remove this cup from me! But not my will but Your will be done’” (Luke 22: 41-42 and also see Matthew 26: 39).

It seems to me that Jesus always knew how to pray. He also gave the right importance to the posture (non-verbal aspect), which always (three-dimensionally) expressed His inner feelings. At times of deep sadness and suffering, He would kneel. I discover, however, all too easily that at the times when He decided to “move mountains” He never had the submissive mental attitude or body posture of someone who is bowed by DEBT or pain, but even the exact opposite. God the Son raised His face toward heaven in search of the loving gaze of His Father in heaven, opened His arms in a sign of faith that His requests would be granted as if He were already embracing them (see the case of Lazarus in particular), standing tall like a proud royal son. This was the mindset of the greatest “Bible character” of prayer and of faith of all times. This is what the only one to have seen the Creator God shows me, and has faithfully and three-dimensionally shown to us men and women. I cannot consider all the other patriarchs and prophets infallible examples. No, only Jesus is the way I want to walk in, because only Jesus is the way, the truth and the life.

With an uncovered face

Incredibly, the prayer that can “move mountains” has become almost unknown while the prayer of sadness and suffering has become virtually the only alternative. Where are the might, the power and the joy when I speak with my loving, omnipotent Father? What has become of my memories of the examples of Jesus when He performed miracles, walked on water, cast out demons and moved mountains? Am I still surprised by the embarrassing difference between the first fans of Jesus and those of today’s Matrixian times? How can I even begin to imagine that looking down towards earth, and not up towards God, I can become similar to Jesus and so to the Father? Doesn’t my polestar tell me that I am transformed in the image of my Savior by looking Him in the face with face uncovered (see 2 Corinthians 3:18)? Do I behave like a slave humiliated in flesh and in spirit who cannot even look his Father straight in the eyes when He speaks to him or do I behave like a proud and humble child of the King of the universe to which the rule of planet Earth has been entrusted? The time has come for me to shake off the smelly, sweaty clothes that make me constantly remember that I am closed in a prison because of my DEBT. I want to be washed by Jesus and wear the marvelous outfit that He has prepared for me, symbol of the unlimited CREDIT that will grant me immortality. I feel that my father wants me to talk to Him barefaced... what uncontainable joy!

A divine sat nav

A silent god?

In His most famous speech (the Sermon on the Mount), Jesus refutes the interpretation of the religious tradition of His day which limits the significance of the law of GOD to the external acts of the way I behave, thus surpassing the human justice of the religious leaders of His time. His famous antitheses, “you have heard that it was said... but I say to you”, are truly significant. They prove that Jesus examines everything deeply, seeking the most complete meaning of the will of God. He never surpasses the law of God thus abolishing it but rather shows its true fulfillment and deepest implications. Jesus’ objective is to get to the bottom of the law. Indeed His words, “you have heard that it was said... but I say to you” do not annul the law, but fill it and enrich it. Jesus is not opposed to the teachings of God contemplated in the Old Testament but to the way they have been understood. The governors of human conscience of Jesus’ times had castrated the law of God, adapting it and making it conform to their Matrixian nature. But the religious leadership is not a divinity authorized to require unconditional, servile obedience.

And indeed, God the Son goes beyond the commandment thus understood (2D), revealing the true principles of life that underlie the written commandment (3D). This way He shows that the comprehension of the Word of God is not immobile and static, but is acquired over time.

And, again, my polestar tells me that the knowledge of the fans of Jesus will continue to grow until Jesus' return.

Therefore, more "you have heard that it was said... but I say to you!" sayings have been foretold precisely for these last days in the Matrix! This truth is certainly difficult to digest for those who feel they are spiritually rich and therefore do not feel they need the Spirit of God which today has still not ceased to speak to and inspire men chosen directly by Him. Unfortunately, the Matrixian religious tradition often betrays the dynamic revelation of God today too, favoring a static divine revelation because it is controllable and can be castrated by the creature.

The Creator God reigns! Who am I to say that the omnipotent God has no longer any reason to speak and that the prophets of the past have already revealed all the truths necessary to come out of the Matrix? How can I even imagine that the Matrix is not continuing to evolve in a chameleon-like way, inventing new never-before-seen tentacles day after day, becoming an ever more subtle and invisible mortal trap for my soul? Didn't Jesus prophesy to me in person that the virus of evil would anesthetize all Jesus' fans in the last days (see Matthew 25:1-13)? Hasn't Jesus always promised that for this reason knowledge would increase, especially in these last days of deep spiritual darkness/sleep (see Daniel 12:4), offering His fans a "divine sat nav" that has been updated with the latest street map of the Matrix, a ghost town with an infinite number of "avenues and alleys" which have no other purpose than to guide my soul towards definitive separation from my Creator and the giver of life and therefore towards certain and eternal death? Doesn't Jesus tell me today, that when I go to the right or to the left, my ears will hear behind me the voice of my sat nav who → will say to me: "This is the way to come out of the Matrix; walk in it!" (see Isaiah 30:21)?

The divine cipher

In cryptography, a cipher is an algorithm used to carry out operations of ciphering and deciphering. In classic cryptography, the codes work by substituting the terms using a large codebook, a list of substitutes to replace words and sentences. When a cipher is used, the original information is known as plaintext and the coded information is known as cipher text. The cipher text contains all the information in the plaintext but expresses it in a form that is illegible to human beings or computers unless they have a certain mechanism to decipher it: to those unable to read it, it should appear as a sequence of characters that makes no sense. The operation carried out by a cipher normally requires auxiliary information called a key. The key must be chosen before ciphering the message and unless it is known, it should be difficult, if not impossible, to decipher the cipher text.

The prophets of God of the past often had premonitions, or the supernatural power that enabled them to see the future or what was happening in other places, in the form of dreams and/or visions. Premonition in general terms indicates a "sensation/communication" in which the individual seems to perceive information about future events before they occur.

My polestar contains these divine premonitions in cipher text, to which there is only one correct key: the Spirit of God (also called the Spirit of Prophecy).

PREMONITION 1.0

My polestar gives an extremely important premonition in the Old Testament that has still not been completely deciphered. The New Testament tells me that the first part was fulfilled through Jesus. Indeed, Jesus declared Himself to be the chosen one who would shortly have fulfilled that premonition (see Luke 4:16 – 21). But the extraordinary thing is that God the Son, Jesus, did not fulfill the whole premonition, only the first part. Here is the part of the premonition that was fulfilled two thousand years ago

➔ through Jesus: “The Spirit of the Creator GOD is upon me, because He has anointed me to bring good news to the humble; He has sent me to bind up the brokenhearted, to proclaim freedom for the slaves in the Matrix, the opening of the prisons for the captives, to comfort all those who are afflicted and give them CREDIT instead of DEBT, forgiveness instead of revenge, a strong spirit instead of a broken one, to proclaim the Jubilee: the year of the LORD’s favor” (see Isaiah 61: 1 – 2 first part). When He reaches this point in the reading, Jesus closes the book

➔ and says: “Today, this premonition is fulfilled” (see Luke 4: 21).

But the second part of that premonition remains unfulfilled (and dramatically ciphered). It is not by chance that it talks about the “day of God’s vengeance”, clearly referring to God the Son’s second coming. This is what Isaiah, the prophet of God, says about the last chosen one before the return of the Savior/Messiah, Jesus:

➔ “to comfort all those that are brokenhearted; to give the afflicted in Zion a crown instead of chains, the joy of unlimited CREDIT instead of pain for the DEBT they can never pay back, wings to fly instead of spiritual and material depression so that they will be called righteous and holy, to show the glory of the Creator in the Matrix” (see Isaiah 61:2 second part – 3).

If there is a chosen one (Jesus) ordained by God to proclaim the year of the Lord’s favor (Jubilee), the divine cipher leaves me no doubt as to the fact that there will be a new chosen one, again ordained by the Creator God, who will also fulfill the second part of this millennial divine premonition.

Premonition 2.0

The premonition, which in Bible terms is called prophecy, of the last prophet of God of the Old Testament, Malachi, says that the postman Elijah will come and will turn (see Malachi 4:5-6):

- A) the hearts of the fathers towards their children;
- B) the hearts of the children towards their fathers.

But up to today, this premonition has only been partially fulfilled through John the Baptist. Indeed, my polestar tells me that an angel gave the following premonition to Zacharias about his son John (later called the Baptist):

➔ “He will go before Jesus the Messiah with the spirit and power of Elijah, to turn the hearts of the fathers to their children. . .” (Luke 1:17). Therefore, the Elijah who was to turn the hearts of the fathers towards their children already came two thousand years ago, just before the first coming of my Savior. Indeed, John drew the hearts of the spiritual fathers (the Jews) toward the Son of God who would soon arise among them.

From part B of Malachi's premonition, which still has not been fulfilled, I understand the mission of God's last postman: to turn the hearts of the spiritual children (Christians) to God the Father. Yes, because the people of God of the last days would worship a god with the name "Father of Jesus", but with a very different face and character from the one the only Son showed me three-dimensionally.

In the Matrix today, then, a false copy of God the Father is circulating. This is why God's people are still in the Matrix and the omniscient Creator prepares, two thousand years earlier, a letter with an invitation to come out of it (see Revelation 18). And this celestial letter will be entrusted precisely to the last postman with the Spirit of Elijah just before the Savior's second coming.

But then if the omniscient God foresaw a reconciliation between His prodigal children of my times and Himself, the heavenly Father, then that means that I am currently very distant from my Creator, the source of all life, and therefore the sole giver of immortality.

The situation for me as a citizen of the Matrix is extremely dire! I feel the deep need to find my Father again who is in heaven, who created me and loves me and calls me His child. I feel the instinctive need to return to my home.

Premonition 3.0

The biblical revelation transmits to me a ciphered premonition, one that has remained incomprehensible up until today. It is found in chapter 11 of the last book of my polestar.

This premonition, sealed until the end of time, informs me two thousand years early that the Creator God will allow two of His postmen to bring letters/messages to the citizens of the Matrix for one thousand two hundred and sixty days. These postmen will be dressed in sackcloth, a sign that their letters contain a severe and harsh reproof for the recipients who erroneously think they are the biggest fans of Jesus (see Revelation 3:14-22).

Remembering the other premonition for these last Matrixian days contained in the last book, and in the last chapter of the Old Testament (Malachi 4), it immediately becomes obvious that this premonition also talks about two of God's postmen.

But the remarkable thing is that while it is said that the second postman, called Elijah, will be sent by God before the second coming of God the Son Jesus (see Malachi 4:5), I find it written of the first postman, called Moses, that I must remember him, through his writings and his laws (see Malachi 4:4). So only one postman will come in flesh and blood while the other will come indirectly through his writings, which since it is Moses, author of the Pentateuch and bearer of the Ten Commandments, can be easily identified as the entire Bible, the Word and law of God. Therefore, God the Father will send His postman with the Spirit and power of Elijah, who will be accompanied and supported by the Word of God (the other postman), polestar of each fan of Jesus and, in particular, by the premonitions contained in it precisely for the last days.

And only thanks to the advent of this postman divinely equipped with the Spirit of Elijah and strengthened and confirmed by the Word of God, the fans of Jesus, until then still unaware citizens of the Matrix, will come out of this rebellious, tyrannical city. All this, indeed, fits in perfectly with the last letter which, according to Revelation, is sent to planet Earth (see chapter 18), a letter containing the loving, and at the same time insistent, invitation to come out of the Matrix.

But is it possible that I am still in the Matrix? Only the humble fans of Jesus will be able to accept this last postman who brings the last letter from the Creator God. Here are all those who observe God's commandments (the postman, called Moses, who wrote the law for me) and keep the testimony of Jesus Christ which is the Spirit of prophecy (the postman in flesh and blood called Elijah). Here is the remnant, the one hundred and forty four thousand... The omega generation (see Revelation 12:17 and 19:10). My polestar categorically assures me they will be the victors, receiving immortality as their prize.

The spirit of Elijah

Elijah was one of the most well-known and authoritative prophets of God. A prophet of God is a divine messenger, chosen and prepared directly by the Most High. The prophet of God represents the voice of God to man. For GOD does nothing without first revealing it to His servants, the prophets (see Amos 3:7).

John the Baptist, Jesus' cousin, who began his mission just before the Messiah to prepare His way, was a prophet of God. But according to my polestar he was not only a prophet, he was inspired and equipped with the "spirit and power of Elijah" (see Luke 1:17).

In the last days, before Jesus' return, according to another prophet of God (see Malachi 4:5-6), the "spirit of Elijah" will return once more. That Spirit will not be a gentle, politically correct or calming spirit. Absolutely not! On the contrary, it will be, for the third time in the history of human race, a Spirit of might, audacity and great clarity. A pounding, irritating voice for all those who have succumbed to the Matrixian spiritual chamomile tea, thus submitting themselves to the rebellious spirit of its prince. An irritating, uncontrollable and untouchable voice.

No one (not even the most poisonous, fatal bullets of the Matrix) will be able to block the divine mission entrusted to this voice that will have arisen out of nowhere, the voice of one who cries out in the spiritual desert that is the Matrix, the postmodern Babylon of my times.

➔ Jesus tells me: “Look, I am at the door of your heart knocking: if you listen to my voice and open the door, I will come in and dine with you and you with me” (see Revelation 3:20). It is definitely the voice of Jesus Himself, who, through His postman equipped with the same Spirit of Elijah and John the Baptist, is rising again. It is up to me to accept that divine voice as saving, or to label it as burdensome, pounding, unpleasant and distressing. But I must remember that the stakes are extremely high: the immortality my Creator promised me many years ago is at risk. That is why the knocking at the door of my heart by Jesus, who loves me with a perfect love, is not at all calm, but frenetic and pounding.

➔ And not listening to the voice of God and His last postman means opposing my Creator, who is the only source of life. My polestar indeed confirms to me: “Believe in the Creator God and you will be safe; believe in His prophets and you will triumph!” (see 2 Chronicles 20:20b).

The awakening of every conscience

All the citizens of the Matrix have been indoctrinated, muzzled and castrated with the false belief that they are only chickens that must remain behind the fence, designed by higher intelligences, of their chicken coop.

The Matrix is a virtual chicken coop for humans in which my mind and aspirations are held back and firmly anchored, by fair means or foul.

The polestar of Jesus' fans reveals to me in the last prophetic verses of the Old Testament (see Malachi 4) that He will raise up, just as He did at the first coming of Jesus on the Earth, a messenger with the spirit and power of the prophet Elijah. This mysterious postman of God will be carrying a letter from the Creator to all the citizens of the Matrix containing an invitation to leave this false and mendacious as well as unjust and enslaving world (see Revelation 18).

The mission of this mysterious "third Elijah" will be to take flight, demonstrating by deeds that I am not a chicken but a golden eagle, created by God to fly high... very high! And the flight of this powerful yet humble postman will represent the fall of the apocalyptic Babylon announced by my polestar, i.e. the end of the Matrix.

When the fans of Jesus, as well as the citizens of the Matrix, see their equal take flight, they will realize they are not chickens but golden eagles. This will be the moment of the awakening of every conscience. The liberation of me, slave, will correspond to the end of the Matrix "chicken coop".

Soon this message of liberation and salvation will illuminate the whole Earth with the glory of God, the loving, omnipotent Father of me, golden eagle.

A liquid world

The Matrix, the world in which I live today, is highly unstable... a liquid world. Every molecule in the Matrix can move/shift/change at any moment. Even molecules considered till yesterday unmovable, literally etched in marble, like, for example, institutions/beliefs that have been fixed for centuries or even millennia, today can mutate their form (or even cease to exist) without the slightest warning.

– In the Matrix, a single whistleblower (informant who reveals secrets that cannot be confessed) can embarrass even the most powerful nation in the world (and its whole diplomatic apparatus).

– In the Matrix, a single terrorist can frighten the entire world population, suddenly modifying the world's habits and vision.

– In the Matrix, a single cracker (computer criminal) can cause a billion dollar multinational company with centuries of history and success behind it to collapse, and even send home tens of thousands of workers.

– In the Matrix, a single hacker (a person who uses computers to gain unauthorized access to data) can break through the most sophisticated security system in the world, humiliating someone who was considered just a moment earlier untouchable and impregnable, in front of the entire global village.

The Matrix is such an interconnected, liquid, unstable world that a single man, if chosen and prepared directly by God, could become:

– the informant about the perfidious secrets of the prince of the Matrix;

– the “terrorist” (according to the false Matrixian propaganda) who frightens the entire host of demons, the dark commanders of the Matrix;

– the “cracker” of the machine of evil that wants to cruelly govern the entire planet Earth;
– the “hacker” that makes the walls of protection of the haughty and self-exalted Matrix crumble ruinously.

Yes, if God desires it, then even a single postman can light up the four corners of this liquid world, bringing the last letter of the Creator to His creatures, warning them in time of the fall of the Matrix to bring them to safety.

It really is a liquid world in which the last wave is about to come and change everything.

Away with the mental chains

My child, come out of the Matrix and abandon the concept of me as cold, cynical and angry, as well as vindictive, heavenly father who considers justice not as by GRACE (regalo ex nibilo), but as something that must be paid with WORKS (fake do ut des gift) done by someone.

My child, come out of the Matrix and stop listening to the smooth voices that for thousands of years have infiltrated the minds of you creatures with doubts about my nature, I, who am life and love.

My child, come out of the Matrix and stop believing that even though my nature is PURE life, I can desire/require death, and that even though I am PURE love, I can desire/require something in exchange for my forgiveness.

My child, come out of the Matrix and refuse the mental chains represented by the fear of some mysterious “god of evil” with whom I have been fighting for thousands of years, an almost omnipotent being who has always taken the human race hostage, asking me, as legitimate father, a ransom price, otherwise...

My child, come out of the Matrix and let go of the image you hold in your head of me, the divine father who before embracing you asks you to show me your merits (or those of a substitute). Stop it, my dear child.

My child, come out of the Matrix and let yourself be freed from this mental prison called the Matrix in which evil dominates over good, in which the impossible promised by me in my Word (your polestar) remains impossible, where the life given by me is (and always will be) suffocated by the shadow of death, where the love that I offer always and in every situation seeks its own profit and where, finally, DEBT reigns.

My child, come out of the Matrix and do a general reset of your mental map which many years before your birth was inculcated in the minds of your parents and ancestors with the sad lie that they were alone, abandoned orphans... left to chance, or at best, to their own destiny.

My child, return home and believe in me, the omnipotent God who created the heavens and the earth exactly as I do with forgiveness, CREDIT which does not have to be earned or paid/expiated.

My child, return home and rediscover the meaning of your existence in the very soon-to-be reunion with me, your heavenly father, who gave you the breath of life and loved you even before you saw the light of day.

My child, return home and allow your conscience to be born again in my liberty, your body to rediscover the harmony and perfection created by me, and your soul to breathe my breath of life... forever.

My child, return home and take flight, release the fears and insecurity that every creature who believes they are an orphan inevitably harbors in their innermost being, recognize with your heart and mind that you are my child, the child of the King of kings, Lord of lords, governor of the entire universe, the only one who is really immortal and omnipotent. Begin to take flight my child!

My child, "Come out of the Matrix" is the cry of love that the I Creator launch to you my beloved creature, you who in the garden of Eden (naïve as a sheep) got lost as you wandered from your own heavenly Father, venturing along paths that seemed stimulating and, above all, that promised false evolution and enlightenment of the human race, but in the end turned out only to be a dead end.

Turn back, my child. Leave the lying Matrix and come back to my arms. It doesn't matter what you have done in your life, if you have squandered every gift that I have given you since your birth. Your past does not matter. Yes, I will erase it, thus creating a different future, once again all reunited in my heavenly home where I have always kept a place for you. And it will be as if you had never left, as if you had never abandoned me, as if you had never experienced the desperate chill of separation from me, your dad.

Yes, make a U-turn and come back to me, my child.

My home is your only real home.

Your dad

P.S. And don't worry if your brother/sister is jealous of this gift from me to you, believing themselves to be more worthy than you. He/she doesn't deserve anything whatsoever either. I hope they'll realize this soon and accept my gift which is completely free and ready for him/her.

Hypnotic propaganda

I am in a trance... a hypnotized person who is unaware that since birth I have believed paradigms preconceived by others. This happens in every sphere, including the spiritual sphere... actually, especially in the spiritual one. Haven't I always bowed, without asking too many questions, to the following deeply false and mocking paradigms?

1. what counts is being externally religious, doing the right things and observing the right rituals and / or commandments... in other words seeming like an ANGEL. It doesn't matter much if I am a DEMON, with a character more like that of the Matrix than my Creator (see COME OUT OF THE MATRIX Volume One);

2. I am an immortal soul, regardless of whether or not I am close to my Creator, and therefore it is useful (if not indispensable) to contact all the deceased souls that have left their bodies but are alive in spirit (see COME OUT OF THE MATRIX Volume Two);

3. the foundation of my existence is the search for self-exaltation, called more diplomatically "social status" or "evolution/enlightenment", even if this brings about my supremacy over my neighbor. In short, true paradise is where the first remain first. That's why I am willing to do anything to raise my EGO above those who come second, third, etc... just to reach the peak of the social pyramid in my society (see COME OUT OF THE MATRIX Volume Three);

4. the key to salvation and the door to immortality are represented by a mathematical (and humanly unassailable balancing of the budget, in which I venture in a do-ut-des type transaction with the divinity that governs this world and the entire universe. I bring him rituals, works and sacrifices. In exchange he changes his sense of vindication, which is covered by a cloak of pseudo-justice, into benevolence and acceptance into his Club of winners, the most obsequious, the most standardized, the most whatever.

It's such a subtle and insidious propaganda that it takes on hypnotic connotations. A truly unconscious indoctrination that completely bypasses my reason and my critical faculties... ultimately, the intelligence given to me by my heavenly Father. A true hypnotic propaganda that bombards me from my first day of life through the infinite prison guards that I encounter during the course of my life in the Matrix.

I discover with immense sadness that most of the citizens of the Matrix are not yet ready to be disconnected from this ATM of false certainties and preconceived reassurance. Many of them are so addicted to and desperately dependent on the Matrix and its rebellious spirit that they are ready to fight to defend it.

Am I ready to make a U-turn, performing what seems to my senses like a leap in the dark? But isn't that what faith is, a leap in the dark... in other words madness (see 1 Corinthians 2:14), like Peter walking on the water with Jesus? Yes, am I ready to walk on water?

I live in a prison without bars, of which I finally know, at least mentally, the way out. But really going along the path barefaced is a whole different matter!

Pure madness

A great Matrixian prison in which I live is the fear of what others think. In order to live in peace, I feel increasingly constrained by an invisible force that is not very clearly defined, to live within a mental fence that my society defines as “normality”. If I think like everyone else, people leave me alone because I am normal. If, however, I come out from the enclosure and start to express my own personal inspiration, then I’m in trouble. It’s as if there’s some sort of gravitational force that pulls me toward the nucleus of the Matrix, represented by its idolized “standard”.

To complete this global and universal encompassing prison, the architects of the Matrix have created a human population full of prison guards ready to attack anyone who steps out of this norm/standard. This happens at the political, economic and religious levels. Yes, even the ecclesiastical institutions have their prison guards (wolves) dressed up as keepers of the truth (sheep). By now, there’s an army of prison guards that impose the Matrixian standard on one another. In short, the prince of the Matrix is modelling me, man, to a preconceived standard so that I will become easier to manage, control and dominate. These are the foundations of a worldwide tyranny, an open-air prison in which I am unknowingly prisoner and guard at the same time.

Jesus, when He came two thousand years ago, walked outside of the Matrixian normality of His times and was heavily attacked because of it. Actually, He was completely eliminated.

What makes me think that things are any different today? Who wants to make me believe that today’s prison guards are on Jesus’ side?

I have to face up to reality and admit to myself that today too, especially today, Jesus also would be labelled, discriminated against and even persecuted as a dangerous subverter of the Matrixian normality.

The Matrix offers me its standard, the wide road of normality. A downhill road that is well tarmacked with the consensus of the many and the powerful. Jesus, on the other hand, points me to a road unknown to the man who always confides in other men and in their institutions. A narrow, unpaved road, even invisible to the human eye, because it is a non-road, an off-road with no tarmac and it is uphill because it requires that I abandon my own EGO. It's up to me to decide whether to stay in this prison or whether to follow the footprints of freedom and salvation in Jesus, footprints that do not follow manmade roads but venture along a path that is pure madness to the Matrixian standard.

Terror

Why do the premonitions of my polestar (see Revelation 7:3/9:4 and 13:16/14:9) stress the fact that God's seal will be placed only on the foreheads of His fans while, in opposition to this group, the fans of the Matrix will be marked either on the forehead or on the right hand? What's the difference between receiving a seal/mark on the forehead and receiving it on the hand?

The forehead houses the brain, and therefore the human reason and will. Receiving God's seal or the mark of the Matrix (called the mark of the beast by my polestar) on the forehead means a willing acceptance of the group to which you belong. I thus discover that belonging to Jesus can only be voluntary... Jesus does not oblige anyone to take His side. That is why His seal will only be placed on the forehead.

Quite the opposite, the mark of the Matrix is accepted both voluntarily by those who receive it on their foreheads and also through the force and coercion of all those who will bear it on their right hands. This means that, in the end, many citizens of the Matrix will not receive the seal of God, not so much because of free choice and absolute conviction that the theories of the prince of the Matrix are true, but rather because they will be afraid to stand against the system, which at that point will seem to control the entire world.

Yes, terror has always been the first weapon that a despot and tyrant uses to ensure the submission of his subjects.

Only a few follow him out of love and conviction, and he knows it. Thus, only control and dominion over everything/everyone can guarantee him the obedience of the majority who do not love him, but fear him.

Jesus' fans are only volunteers. I cannot become one by inheritance or even out of convenience... much less out of fear (of DEBT and the consequent judgment). This choice can be dictated only out of love for my Savior and Creator.

That is why the last fans of Jesus, the Omega generation, will be a courageous group of people confident in the divine protection, challenging with their very own lives, the omnipotence (merely apparent) of the prince of the Matrix.

The prince of the Matrix uses the weapon of fear and terror on all those who do not believe his lies and feel attracted to the vital light of the love of God. Do I blindly believe in the divine protection, or do I allow myself to be easily imprisoned in the mental prison of terror?

Paradigm shift

I am led to believe that I see things as they really are, that I am perfectly objective. But the truth is different: I see the world not as it is in reality, but according to my subjective view... according to my "glasses", the fruit of the education I received and my general background. When I tell what I see with my personal “glasses”, I do nothing but describe myself, my perceptions, my paradigms, my mindset. And whenever others do not agree with me, I immediately think that there must be something wrong with them.

People who are completely sincere and analytical see the same thing in different ways, each one looking through the unique spectacles of their own experience.

A paradigm, therefore, indicates a model, a theory, a way of perceiving, a reference system, a mental map; in this case, it is completely personal. It is therefore my way of “seeing” the world, not only in terms of sensory perception, but also and above all in terms of the conception, comprehension and interpretation of the world. I see the reality that surrounds me with my eyes and my ideas and, over time, I get used to accepting that that reality is unmodifiable, crystalized.

This is exactly the same thing that happens in the spiritual sphere. I read the Word of God and I think that I interpret the will and face of God to perfection. I am convinced that my view of spiritual things corresponds exactly to the absolute truth.

Then an event occurs, something external that makes me change my mind about that “view” and the reality that I used to perceive with conviction in that specific way now seems different to me: it is a paradigm shift. I see reality through different eyes and reality looks new to me.

The pirate of souls

I catapult myself once more back in time to the days of the creation, the Garden of Eden and Adam and Eve. How does the old serpent, alias the prince of the Matrix, try to manipulate my mind straight after the creation of my species? By offering me a “pill” (a paradigm / mindset) that creates in me the face of a bad god who wants my harm so that he can hold himself on a higher plane than me.

➔ “The serpent said to the woman: ‘No, you will not die at all; but God knows that the day you eat it, your eyes will open and you will be like God...’” (see Genesis 3:4). This is the completely false, lying paradigm that has been inculcated in my mind, thus manipulating the close and intimate relationship that I had, until then, with my heavenly father, alias the Creator God. This is the moment in which my mind was attacked and cracked by the pirate of souls using a “pill” . . . a false paradigm. . . a real mental prison.

And what on the other hand is the first thing that God says after Adam and Eve abandon the paradigm of their beloved Creator, to senselessly follow the paradigm of the enemy creature? He asks, “Where are you?” Yes, the thing that my heavenly father cares most about is that I am near Him. Isn't that what happens when you love someone? To seek the closeness of one's beloved rather than emphasizing the faults and failings. . . Love covers many sins says my polestar (see 1 Peter 4:8). This is what real love does. It's not a mathematical calculation to repay/redeem a wrong suffered, but the suffering of one who loves but feels abandoned and betrayed. I will understand who God really is (and what He is really like) when my eyes and my heart can manage to see God interact with me for the love of His name and not according to my Matrixian character or my rebellious actions (see Ezekiel 20:44).

I need a paradigm shift in my relationship with my Creator. To no longer see Him as cold, distant and inaccessible God, but as a heavenly father. Doesn't His only son Jesus teach me to call Him dad in the Lord's Prayer? So He is no longer a God who cannot be named, like that of the Jews of the Old Testament, but a really close God who stoops down to my level to show me His love more clearly, in a way that I can understand better.

I can call on Him whenever I want, I can question Him when I want, I can discuss things with Him when I want... in short, like a perfectly normal earthly father. This is the father in heaven that Jesus came to show me. This is the paradigm shift that I must make... actually, that I want to make. But all this is pure madness for the Matrix.

Red pill or orange pill?

Human beings have an insane fear of change, they never want to risk changing the situation of "apathy/sleep" too much out of fear that they won't be able to get calm again once "changed/awakened". So, when I am faced with such a choice... what do I do?

RED PILL: I believe in the paradigm of the mathematically-correct god, the guru of the balancing of the books, the bringer of austerity and the prophet of DEBT, who wants, or even needs, me to pay for the damage that I've done with the red of blood (or for someone to pay for it for me)... I feel at peace and the Matrix assures me of its protection and total immunity from all kinds of worry.

ORANGE PILL: I begin to confide in the unconditional and free CREDIT from God/my Father who loves me madly. With the orange of trust and optimism, I put myself on the line... now my life changes...

Revolution n° 4

Do I feel like an insignificant number in this world? A new world is about to begin...

Am I tired and embittered by violence of every kind? Soon the wolf and the lamb will graze together...

Do I have the distinct impression that I am being fooled and exploited by the rulers? Theocracy is about to return...

Do I feel squeezed like a lemon? The concept of both material and spiritual DEBT is about to expire.

Do I feel the need for an inner, spiritual rebirth? The pure, simple message of Jesus is about to resound.

Do I miss my loved ones who are now dead? The resurrection of the dead is about to take place.

It is now midnight in the Matrix and Jesus is about to return.

Revolution N° 4: nothing will be as it was before. Everything will return to its original condition as it was when God created the heavens and the earth, and in particular me, man, in His moral image and likeness. A world in which only one pole exists... that of good and of CREDIT.

Non-violent opposition

The Matrix needs me. Without my soul, my energy, my work and my blind obedience, it ceases to exist, as if it no longer breathes. Its infamous tentacles grip me, sucking my lifeblood day after day. They crush me, holding me all my life in a comatose state that won't allow me to think or reason.

When I reach the point of wanting to use violence then I am playing the Matrix's game and the game of its astute commander-in-chief. The Matrixian institutions irritate me, they pull my hair, they empty my pockets, insult and deride me, they humiliate me, removing my dignity and freedom. They do all they can to make me fight. Once they have made me violent, they know how to handle me, because then I am like them. . . . Actually, I have the Matrix inside me and so I am totally controlled by it and trapped in it. By reacting with violence, I become an integral part of the Matrix! The only thing that the enlightened architects of the Matrix don't know how to handle is non-violence. Yes, a Christian style character is the best strategy for coming out of the Matrix. And the abandonment of the Matrix is the end of the Matrix. Just as a prison without prisoners makes no sense. Indeed, the Matrix is not self-sustaining. It needs the fresh, living blood that it daily draws from me, an often unaware and unknowing donor. An empty Matrix, with no souls to flog, is a dead Matrix. But a firm, strong, non-violent opposition is about to emerge. An opposition not corrupted by the virus of the Matrix. A healthy, free and audacious opposition. These fans of Jesus will not allow themselves to be bought or sold. They ridicule the Matrix with steely, non-violent non-cooperation and reveal its total dependence on the blind collaboration of its prisoners. The truth, which is literally turned upside down compared to the reality that the Matrix shows me, is that the prisoners are actually children of the King, of the Most High and the prison is a ridiculous sandcastle. The time has come for me to make sure I am given the royal crown that my Father has ready for me and to remove the papier-mâché chains that the Matrix would have me believe are of steel.

Lift up your voice

Even though the society in which I live tells me I am only a number, I want to FLY HIGH!

Even though the “leaders” see me as a mere “follower” to be indoctrinated, I want to LIFT UP MY VOICE!

Even though my closest friends/relatives only emphasize the risks I’m taking, I don’t want to be afraid to SEIZE THE OPPORTUNITIES!

Even though the prince of the Matrix whispers to me that I’m up to my neck in DEBT, I want to become an ambassador for the unlimited and free CREDIT given to me through Jesus from my heavenly Father!

Even though I don’t like myself when I look in the mirror, I want to ask my Creator to make the wonderful DNA in me emerge, the DNA He placed in me when He created me!

I am a golden eagle, the child of the Creator God. I was conceived to FLY HIGH amongst all creation. I must stop crawling because of the fear and anxiety passed on to me by society/leaders/friends/relatives/... and sometimes even by myself.

Jesus came to this Earth and FLEW HIGH. Then He looked me straight in the eyes and said to me, “Follow me!” What am I waiting for to take flight with Jesus and just like Jesus?

My coronation

My polestar tells me about another very interesting premonition that exists and it involves me directly. Yes, it talks precisely about me and all the fans of Jesus in today's Matrixian times. This premonition is of the prophet of God, Zachariah (see Zachariah 3), who wrote one of the last books of the Old Testament. This premonition shows me exactly the scene in which I, slave in the Matrix, dressed in holey, dirty, smelly clothes, am washed, cleaned and dressed again by the Creator God. This is the divine premonition that promises me that I will be crowned as a child of the King. In spite of those who want to hurt me and the prince of the Matrix who has always reminded me of how bad and ugly I am, and of what I deserve, of my "unlimited" DEBT, just unlimited slavery in an imaginary place called hell. Yes, because there is no such place. The nightmare of the god who sends his children to a place where they will be punished and tortured for eternity is one of the most infamous lies of the enemy of souls.

The truth is completely different: I am a child of God and He will soon come to take me home where my coronation awaits me, together with that of all my other brothers and sisters who have decided to make a U-turn, from DEBT to CREDIT, getting back close to the source of all life. What a glorious future awaits me!

Unlimited power

The idea of reckoning and of DEBT is the creature's idea and it is completely foreign to the conception that Jesus' Father demonstrates that He has. It is therefore a false conception, brought forth in the darkness of separation from God, in the cold mind of the creature without God. A penalty imposed teaches obedience, but it cannot convince. The Word of the true God, on the contrary, always teaches that God welcomes me, the creature. The kingdom of God is the homeland of liberty. The Matrix is the capital of tyranny and dictatorship, revenge and death in which all the subjects bow passively to the theology of DEBT. And if in the Matrix the pitiless and mathematical balancing of the budget reigns, in heaven CREDIT abounds. In the first kingdom base, grey bureaucrats spout out sentences, in the second kingdom a grace that shines brighter than the sun prevails... so bright that it makes my sins which are red as crimson evaporate (see Isaiah 1:18). Reading the Bible in the light of the true face and character of God the Father represents the key to release the divine power held in these pages. And for millennia this power has remained trapped, a victim of my mind imprisoned by a false concept of the Creator God. The time has come for me to come out of this prison of a god who wants me to be a slave and take flight like the birds created by the Creator God. Yes, I am a golden eagle who flies high because I have dropped the baggage of false, lying human justice. I fly really high because the love and the CREDIT from God push me beyond the limits that I thought humanly unreachable. I fly higher in the heavens; I meet my Creator and Liberator. Nothing can stop my return home and no DEBT can rob me of my Father's embrace. Yes, I can already hear His footsteps as He comes towards me, I hear His voice calling me, His powerful and loving arms holding me tight. I see His marvelous face and His magnificent smile. His eyes emit joy - uncontainable, contagious joy. His whole being emanates profound peace and serenity. This is my dad... a dad who is crazy about me.

Finally home...

The soundtrack for the last generation of fans of Jesus

My heavenly Father is my light and my salvation; of whom will I be afraid?

The Almighty is the shield of my life; who will I fear?

When the Matrixian zombies, who hate me passionately, attack me to devour me and strip my flesh bare, they will stumble and fall.

When the whole army of the Matrix encamps against me, my heart will not fear; when slander and persecution against me infuriate, even then will I trust.

One thing have I asked of my Creator God, and that will I seek: to dwell in my dad's house for eternity, to admire the beauty of His character and the perfection of His love, and to meditate in His house.

For He will protect me in the palm of His omnipotent hand during the days of anguish, He will keep me in the most secret place which the Matrix does not know about, causing me to fly high like a golden eagle.

The end

Song about the prince of the Matrix

Dear Lucifer,
Yes, I call you “dear” because even today, despite all the evil you have perpetrated, your (and my) Creator still loves you. Doesn’t the polestar, the Bible, say that God loves sinners but hates sin? You are a sinner, probably the greatest sinner of all the creatures, but despite that, your (and my) God still loves you with a perfect love.

Many believe that you are the god of evil. This does not correspond to the truth. You are only a creature, just like me, who simply wanted to rise above his creator. The god of evil does not exist; it is only one of your inventions, just so you can become a god, a potential substitute/successor of the Creator (albeit a negative version). But there is only one immortal, omnipotent, omniscient and omnipresent God, and that is the Creator God. He is the God of good, and only of good, because my polestar says of Him that He is life and He is love.

Today the name Lucifer no longer belongs to you. It means bearer of light and was given to you by your Creator at your creation. Even if you continue to sign off with this name, it was taken away from you. Today you are sadly only Satan, the enemy of the Creator and of the creatures (yourself included).

Even if you continue to hide it from the human race, even denying it to your demon companions and, unbelievably, even to yourself, you are getting old and your strength is abandoning you. Ever since you separated yourself from your Creator, the source of all life, your life breath is slowly expiring. And yet you continue to nourish feelings of proud supremacy, blaspheming the name of your God day and night without the slightest feeling of guilt. You are now a complete slave to your own rebellious spirit, a spirit that is leading you to self-destruction. It's useless for you to continue to hide your wrinkles, which are increasingly deep and irreversible. Your destiny is now set... it's written on your face.

Despite what they say, it won't be your heavenly Father (who inexplicably continues to love you) to destroy you. This Father of ours is life. He has nothing to do with death. Your destruction is only the most obvious consequence of your voluntary separation from Him, giver of life. Far from God, we die, but near Him, we are reborn. And your decision, by now irreversible, will soon deliver you the final blow (see Isaiah 14:9). And yet, I already know that your (and my) heavenly Father, just as His son Jesus taught me in the parable of the prodigal son, will witness your self-destruction with deep pain. What a sad thing, the old cherub, bearer of the divine light writhing and dissolving far from the same light that radiates harmony and life in all the creation.

You were created perfect... you were so beautiful.

Looking at you now I'm left breathless as I note how ugly your face has become, once bright because it was in the image and likeness of your Creator. You yourself, who have the face of God carved into your memory, avoid looking at yourself so you don't commit suicide on the spot (see Isaiah 14:16).

Your plan, truly diabolical and apparently perfect, will be buried with you. Yes, your objective of deforming the wonderful, perfect face of God the Father has failed miserably. You tried, and I must admit with some success, to infiltrate the minds of your brothers and sisters of the human race with the image of a heavenly father who is angry, cold, distant and hostile. For millennia you portrayed, with really subtle, insidious tactics, a Creator with an irascible, merciless and warmongering character.

However, this attempt of yours has failed! The face and character of God have once again begun to shine their beauty to the four corners of the earth, revealing your attempted coup d'état against the King of kings and Lord of lords. The whole universe belongs to Him, and soon every creature will voluntarily worship only Him, and with joy.

Your only hope, when faced with the unlimited attractive force of the Creator's love for His creatures, was that of covering this love that is so powerful with a theory of miserable, base human justice, according to which the liberation of the human race from death (due to separation from God) could only occur through death itself... the death of a substitute (among other things, innocent), and not simply through reconciliation with the source of all life where death cannot even exist for a moment. Did God the Son, Jesus, really come to appease the wrath of His father with the payment of a tribute (His own life), or did He come to reconcile the human race with the love of the heavenly Father who is still waiting with arms open wide and tears furrowing His face after too many years have passed? God (father) who kills God (son), using His own creature as executioner, to appease Himself is truly aberrant... a true human sacrifice worthy only of the basest of demons, you Satan. Your mind has reached truly maleficent levels. But the real madmen were us men for believing that the God of life and love, the omnipotent God of the Bible, didn't have the strength and willingness to give His creature immortality (and thus forgiveness) without asking for anything in exchange. Isn't even a human father/mother capable of giving their child the best they have without asking for anything in exchange? Is it possible that we men, now light-years from the source of life and perfect love, are capable of being better parents than the God of love who gave us the breath of life? As if the source of life could have asked in exchange for what is most distant from Him: death. Isn't salvation by grace the thread running through all the books that make up the biblical canon? If this grace was purchased with the blood of an innocent, what kind of grace is that? Would this god really be better than me? When my own god is no better than I am, then it's useless... or perhaps even less than useless. Isn't that your objective ex-Lucifer, you who now love distance from God, you who hope for evil and feed off others' suffering? (see Isaiah 14:6)

Enemy Satan, you have managed to create in the minds of us men a god of evil that is even stronger than you really are: a mere creature at the end of your life (see Isaiah 14:11). How else could we have believed that the Creator was obliged by you to pay a price for our ransom? Ransom? What ransom? You are not keeping me, a sinner, prisoner simply because you yourself are in the same prison as me and this prison is called: separation from God. You are terminally ill and you're in the same boat/prison as me with no hope of blackmail. The Creator is certainly not going to stoop to making deals with you... He doesn't need to and anyway it would go against His character, His very nature, His DNA. Enough of this exaltation, even if it is negative, of your possibilities. You are on your deathbed. And only the fact that the giver of life has not yet completely moved you away from Himself keeps you alive. But complete separation, which is what you have hoped for thousands of years, has now arrived. Your dark destiny is swallowing you up into the void (see Isaiah 14:15).

You Satan, who feel as if you are a prince of this world, a world distant from God, you who have created the Matrix, a kingdom in your image and likeness, are only dust compared to the Creator God. The Matrix, a world with a religion founded on DEBT that prays to its god, bringing sacrifices and prayers of all sorts, in the hope of appeasing his terrible wrath, is a kingdom of sand that dissolves at the first gust of wind. And in the end, the god that is worshipped in the Matrix is also a god of sand. That presumed god is none other than you, Satan (see Isaiah 14:3). You were finally realizing your dream of being crowned god. You took God's place, God's name, His appearance, but you don't have His character. You are, and will remain till your last breath, merely a rebellious soul bent on the destruction of every form of life that comes close to you, including yourself.

You should know that your old strategy, which you had already begun to use in the Garden of Eden with Eve when you tried (alas, with success) to distort the image of the Creator in the creature and sow doubt about His real motives, has been unmasked in your own kingdom called the Matrix. From your first word in Eden to your last word today in the Matrix, there was nothing but the attempt to make the Creator of the heavens and the earth look bad, turning His CREDIT into DEBT. A lie that will be eternally damned!

Yes, ex-Lucifer, the Matrix fell at the precise moment when its citizens understood what is the true face of their heavenly Father. The Matrix, even if, together with your followers, you still don't want to admit it, has imploded... it has literally crumbled and will be no more (see Isaiah 14:5). And all its proud and haughty citizens will find themselves with a fistful of sand in their hands. How great their disappointment will be!

We fans of Jesus are not happy about how you and all your followers are going to end up, but we leap for joy for the end of evil, which has shown itself to be an ugly, fatal cancer that makes cells that were created good and perfect by the Creator God go crazy (see Isaiah 14:7). How could it be possible that within the good, beautiful and perfect creation by God, evil could spring up? Didn't God seem like He Himself was an accomplice in the origin of evil according to your false, mocking theory? If God is the only Creator, who if not He, could also have been the artifice of death together with every other form of evil? And yet, today it is clear to me that all the molecules that make up the entire universe would have remained good, healthy and vital as long as they remained in line with the divine harmonious plan, i.e. close to God. But the spark of evil was born in you the moment you altered this pre-established harmony, raising your EGO above your God. Cursed be the moment at which you altered the harmony in you, giving life to the rebellious spirit that infected the whole earth for millennia, an alteration from which every form of evil that manifested (and continues to manifest) came as a consequence in the life of every man on this planet called Earth. Only now is it clear to my eyes that evil cannot be created. Since evil is distance from God, it is enough to distance oneself from God to experience the birth of evil.

The Creator God could have eliminated evil by force at its birth. But this imbalance wouldn't have suppressed evil for long, presenting day after day other metastases all around the creation. Harshness can only render one harsh; retribution of evil with evil can only teach evil. These infinite new metastases would have been the most obvious consequence when faced with a God who defines life but actually kills his own creature at the first sign of dissent. Can life give the opposite of itself, i.e. death?

No, the God of love had no choice but to continue to be Himself, life and love, opting for a long-term solution, but one that would be certain and definitive. Only the clear counterposition between the kingdom of the Creator founded on CREDIT, on love and life, and the Matrixian constitution of the rebellious kingdom of the creature founded on DEBT, on selfishness and on death, could utter the final word in this sad story. Doesn't my polestar confirm to me that evil can only be conquered with good? Not death, not destruction or revenge, but only patient, strong love is the antidote to the virus of evil.

Satan, you still speak, you still act, you still plot in the darkness, but you are already dead. Your heart has just stopped beating and in a few moments your brain will also suffer the consequences and switch off for eternity (see Isaiah 14:19).

I must be honest... thank goodness God the Son (Jesus) came to Earth and showed me the marvelously loving face and character of the Father three-dimensionally, otherwise your plan would have prevailed. And just seeing Him nailed to the infamous cross because of your purest evil, Satan, and alas, mine too as your accomplice, caused the spark of repentance to light up in me and in the whole human race. And only the resurrection has restored to me power, joy, and unlimited hope.

The time has come to embrace my heavenly Father who has been waiting for me with arms open wide ever since I was born despite the fact that I deserve absolutely nothing. But my dad is crazy... yes, crazy with love for me and for each of His prodigal children. And where this dad crazy with love is, there is life... forever!

A fan of Jesus who has decided to take flight

*Gather together, all of you, and listen to me.
Which of them has had these premonitions?
One who I love will do my will in the Matrix and,
with his arm, on its architects.
I, I have spoken; I have called him,
I have caused him to come and I have given him success in his endeavors.
Come out of the Matrix,
run from its enlightened architects;
spread the news with a joyful voice,
cause it to reach the ends of the earth.
Say: "The Lord has redeemed His servant Jacob".*

(see Isaiah 48: 14-15 + 20).

Sources

In writing this booklet, I drew inspiration from other sources, mainly, obviously, the Holy Bible itself (New Revised Version).

In particular, while writing all four volumes, the wise counsel and the constructive criticism of my father, Vincenzo, were precious. For the fourth volume I also drew inspiration from the books “Il volto di Dio”, “La pazzia di Dio” and “Rilettura dell’Antico Testamento alla luce di Gesù detto il Cristo” by Adelio Pellegrini.

However, this booklet (together with the other three that preceded it) in its entirety has its own originality and does not depend in any way on its sources. Its independence lies in its selectivity. The sources were useful to me, but never truly influenced me. Indeed, I have tried to model each reflection in such a way that they would all contribute to the message I want to transmit to you and all those who will read it.

The ultimate objective of this booklet, just like that of the first three volumes, is to let the world know about the imminent return of our Savior Jesus Christ. It is much nearer than even the most optimistic and sincere seekers of the truth can even imagine or believe, and the prophecies in the Word of God warn us of the imminent conclusion of the history of this planet.

Jesus is about to return and the Bible says so clearly. . . .

Actually, it cries it out to the four corners of the Earth.

➔ “Behold, I am coming and with me I have the reward to give to each man according to his works”

(Revelation 22:12).

About two thousand years ago the first Christians, believing that the second coming of Christ was near, would greet each other with the greeting “Maranatha”, meaning “Come, oh Lord”.

Maranatha dear fan of Jesus!
